HIGHWAY WORK GOES SLOWLY

Amid construction delays, heavy equipment rips up a portion of Willow Avenue in preparation for a southbound off-ramp of Highway 101 opposite the Marin Civic Center. A $105,000 contract for the work was awarded Sept. 23 to Teichert Construction Co. of Woodland, but mud and soft soil have delayed construction, according to the state Division of Highways. The contractor, however, still has 22 days, minus rain, to complete the project, which will provide speedier access to the Civic Center via North San Pedro Road.

Veil Is Lifted On Secret Laotian Base

First Guided Tour Of Operation In 10 Years

LONG CHENG, Laos (UPI) — The United States today lifted its years-long veil of secrecy from this strategic Laotian government base in north-central Laos while bitter fighting raged around it and its fate still was in doubt.

For the first time, journalists were given an American-sponsored look at the stronghold where the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) had trained, advised and paid Meo irregulars for the past decade.

On Skyline Ridge, which overlooks the base and is considered vital to its defense, the commander of the government forces was wounded as he spoke to newsmen.

Major Chanh, commander of the four battered government battalions on the ridge, was asked how many casualties his men had suffered scnce assaulting the ridge Sunday.

"Very many," he said.

About two minutes later, he became a casualty himself when a North Vietnamese 82mm mortar slammed into the dusty red clay beside his bunker command post. A peasized piece of shrapnel penetrated the back of the major's head.

Several other young soldiers were wounded when another round slammed into the ground minutes later.

About 100 yards or so forward, government forces dug into fighting holes were eyeball-to-eyeball with North Vietnamese who had stubbornly defended every yard of the ground they had lost along the ridge line during the past several days.

Gen. Vang Pao, commander of the Meo tribesmen and regular forces at Long Cheng, was hard at work in his command post on high ground adjacent tc the ridge.

Vang Pao was optimistic although it appeared unlikely that the Americans would be able tc put back any of their secret equipment into Long Cheng anytime soon.

The equipment, including some sophisticated crytographic machines, were removed tc the rear weeks ago. Buildings on the base, as well as many in the adjacent town of Long Cheng, have been destroyed.

"We have destroyed many of their 130-mm guns," Vang Pac said.

He referred to the heaviest artillery yet used in the war in Laos, the artillery pieces the North Vietnamese introduced when they overran the Plain of Jars in mid-December.

The 30,000 civilians in the town of Long Cheng fled several weeks ago when the base and the town came under heavy bombardment.

A runway at the base still was not in use by U.S. or Laotian planes.

Vang Pao personally directed artillery and air strikes at an enemy outpost which is within sight of his command post.

The general peered through a scope and called in fire on the position, which was literally set afire.

Vang Pao estimated the enemy had lost about "8,000 men" in and around Long Cheng.

But he said that in the past three weeks the Communists had poured more than 6,000 rounds of 130-mm artillery into Long Cheng and government casualties also had been heavy.

Court Rules No Remap Changes

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Supreme Court unanimously ruled yesterday that present state Senate and Assembly districts can be used in this year's elections.

The ruling, which stemmed from a reapportionment battle between legislation and Gov. Ronald Reagan, automatically canceled the reelection campaign of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, who now will continue the rest of his four-year term to 1974. He had declared his candidacy for reelection three weeks ago while the court still was considering a Senate reapportionment plan that apparently obliged Behr to run this year in a new district.

The court, overruling Reagan's veto, also ordered adoption of the Legislature's new districts for the state's 43-member delegation to the House of Representatives.

This extends the Sixth Congressional District north to include all of Marin as well as western San Francisco. The district previously ended just south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

The decision in favor of the congressional reapportionment thus extended the Sixth District to the Novato home of Thomas T. Storer, who months ago declared his candidacyfor the Democratic nomination in the new district.

Also running for the Democratic nomination is San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas. The incumbent is Republican William S. Mailliard of San Francisco.

The court's ruling, which came only 19 hours after the deadline for filing written arguments, had no effect on Marin's other legislator, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. Assemblymen run every two years anyway, and his district would have been little changed under the reapportionment plan killed by the court.

The court also ordered the Legislature to reapportion itself this session so that new dis-

Marinites Named In SEC Suit

I-J Special Report

PORTLAND — The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has filed suit to put out of business an overseas investment combine listing five Marinites as company officials.

The commission acted Monjay against United Financial Group Inc., a company with stockholdings near $100 million and headed by Robert W. Pollock, a Black Point resident.

Other Marinites named in the suit are Robert J. Walker of Sausalito, Jose Gutierrez of San Rafael and Barry D. J. Snider and Myer Avedovech, both of Novato.

In a 40-page complaint, U.S. attorney Sidney Lezak said the firm was a financially weak corporation that has manipulated and artificially fixed the prices of shares of United Financial Group and subsidiary corporations.

The SEC suit seeks to enjoin the entire combine from further operations for violations under the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The suit asks a receiver be named by the court to take possession of all financial books and records, funds and property.

UFG, formerly known as USI Group, Inc., is a Delaware Corporation which maintained main offices in Portland until September, 1969. Since then principal offices have been in Novato.

In addition to UFG, defendants listed are United States Investment Service, Ltd.; United States Investment Plan, Ltd.; Standard Investment Co.; United Growth Fund, Inc.; United Income and Growth Fund, Inc.; Euro-American Real Estate Fund, Inc.; USI Venture Fund, Inc.; Standard Growth Properties, Inc.; Fund of Nations, Inc.; United States

PASADENA (UPI) — A spectacular photograph of Mars showing a vast chasm and wind-sculptured surface patterns resembling a gigantic tree or a network of rivers was released today by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. (See photo, page 4.)

A JPL spokesman said the photo taken on the 119th orbit by America's Mariner 9 spacecraft was "just spectacular."

"There is a vast chasm with branching canyons and an eroding adjacent plateau in a land form evolution apparently unique to Mars," he said.

Two Novato Candidates File Papers

Two Novato City Council candidates filed completed nomination papers for the April 11 municipal elections in Marin yesterday, while a third announced he was in the running.

Incumbent David Price Jones and John C. Schoonover, chairman of the Novato Planning Commission, filed, while Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, declared he would seek one of the three council seats open.

In Ross, incumbent Councilman Jewell Osterloh filed papers yesterday for reelection. Challenger Joan Sestak became the first to file for one of the three Larkspur council seats up for election.

No new filings or announcements were made in any other of the 10 Marin County cities and two Southern Sonoma cities that will hold municipal elections in April.

In addition to the three Corte Madera council filings reported yesterday, Gerald A. Hood earlier this week became the first to file for one of Mill Valley's three seats, and Albert Aramburu completed filing for one of two Tiburon council seats. Both previously had announced their candidacies.

Before his appointment to the Novato council last April, Jones was named "outstanding young man of the year" in Novato in 1970, served two terms as president of the Novato Civic Foundation, two years as a director of the Marin County Bar Association and five years as a director of the Marin County March of Dimes.

Jones has lived in Novato since 1962 and is a member of the law firm of Carrow and Jones. He is a graduate of Boalt

A Second Challenger To Arrigoni

Barbara Boxer of Greenbrae today became the second challenger for the Second Supervisorial District seat held by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., chairman of the board.

Mrs. Boxer, 31, wife of an attorney and a former stockbroker, charged that Arrigoni "failed to treat with imagination and effectiveness ... a host of environmental and social issues" faced by the county.

Meanwhile, Tiburon City Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood announced today she is withdrawing from the race for the Third Supervisorial District seat and instead will seek reelection to the city council.

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Boxer called for a full-time supervisor and said the board has too often relinquished policy matters to the county administrator.

The candidate is the wife of attorney Stewart N. Boxer, who is chairman of the Marin County Human Rights Commission. The other announced candidate for the Second District seat is Dr. William J. Filante of Greenbrae, an eye specialist.

Arrigoni has not yet formally announced he will seek reelection, but is expected to do so.

Mrs. Boxer is vice chairman of Marin Alternative, was one of the leaders of the successful campaign against Measure B, the Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct proposal on last November's ballot, and was on the steering committee for Proposition A, the 1970 peace referendum.

She is chairman of the personnel commission of the Marin County Schools office, was a founding member of the Education Corps of Marin, and served as a director of the Marin

Phantom Jet Scores MIG Kill Over North Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. Navy F4 Phantom jet-fighter shot down a North Vietnamese MIG21 intercepter over North Vietnam with a missile today after five American planes dodged eight Surface-to-Air (SAM) missiles and antiaircraft fire.

The Soviet-built MIG21, North Vietnam's fastest plane, was the first brought down by U.S. aircraft since May 28, 1970.

U.S. spokesmen said the eight SAM2 missiles and bursts of antiaircraft fire aimed at a Navy RA5 reconnaissance plane and its escorts caused minor damage to an A7 Corsair jet over the Quang Lang airfield near Ha Tien, about 120 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) that separates the two Vietnams. All planes returned safely to aircraft carriers in the Tonkin Gulf, they said.

Radio Hanoi said two Phantoms from the flight "have been shot down by groundfire" this afternoon. The broadcast, monitgred in Saigon, said this brought to 3,431 the number of American planes shot down over North Vietnam.

The latest air activity over the North came after the United States reported using one-third of its entire Indochina B52 bomber fleet in the heaviest raids in almost two years in South Vietnam's Central Highlands region.

U.S. spokesmen said 33 of the Thailand-based eight-engined Stratofortresses in 11 waves have dumped 900 tons of high explosives in the last three days on thickly jungled mountains of the tri-border area where South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia meet. A Communist force buildup was reported in that area, they suid.

Unofficial statistics showed the bombing was probably the most intensive in the region since the siege of Ben Het border camp in March, 1970.

In the air war over North Vietnam, the U.S. spokesman said the RA5 reconnaissance aircraft and two escort warplanes were fired on by eight SAMs and antiaircraft guns over Quan Lang, near the coast.

"Two escort aircraft immediately conducted a protective reaction against the enemy sites with unknown results," he said. The "protective reaction," a rule which allows aircraft to retaliate if fired upon, was the 10th over the north so far this year. One of the A7 escort planes suffered "minor damage" in that incident, the spokesman said.

"Four minutes later in the same general area, a U.S. Navy F4 aircraft engaged and shot down a MIG21 aircraft with air-to-air missiles," he said.

Behr Delighted But Reagan Disappointed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Reaction to yesterday's state Supreme Court reapportionment decision ranged from delight to denunciation in the Capitol.

Gov. Ronald Reagan said he was "deeply disappointed" that the court overruled his veto of the congressional redistricting plan passed by the Legislature. "The result will be that Californians cannot be fairly represented during the next session of Congress," he said.

The plan had the unanimous support of the state's congressional delegation, but was criticized by Reagan as a gerrymander favoring Democrats.

The man most delighted with the decision apparently was Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. The court ruled that existing legislative districts can be used in this year's elections, thus cancelling the reelection campaign Behr had announced for the new district that would have been formed under the Senate reapportionment plan voided by the court.

"Instead of facing a costly and potentially divisive prima' ry battle," Behr said, "I am suddenly offered the enjoyable alternative of acting as a legislator full-time for the next three years rather than vigorously campaigning for my own political survival." Behr was elected to a four-year term in 1970, and seated only last January.

The senator predicted that a new reapportionment plan for the upper house will include Marin in a district extending into western San Francisco and Sonoma or Napa county.

The plan killed by the court would have included Marin in a district extending through San Francisco into San Mateo County.

Strongest condemnation of the ruling came from Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who called it a

No Official Word On Cleaver

ALGIERS (UPI)—The new head of the international section of the Black Panther Party today refused to deny reports that Eldridge Cleaver was returning to the United States to lead the Afro-American Liberation Army.

Pete O'Neil, newly designated leader of the International Panthers, confirmed Cleaver had resigned as head of the party.

He replied with a "no comment" when asked if Cleaver was on his way back to the United States where he is wanted for leaving the country while awaiting trial for parole violation.

Sausalitans Will Get Voice In Controversial Park Plaza Plan

By PAT ANGLE

By a unanimous vote, the Sausalito City Council agreed last night to give city residents a voice in the city's controversial Park Plaza plan. (Other Sausalito Council stories, page 6.)

The council decided to place on the April 11 ballot a measure saying that before the city moves to implement the plan, it will first be submitted to voters, along with cost information and data on any loss of revenue which may result.

One councilman, who voted to put the matter before voters, nevertheless expressed disapproval by calling the measure "amusing and ineffectual."

Councilman Stephen A. Fraser also said it was an effort by a "small, greedy clique" to deny residents use of the waterfront.

The William E. Spangle plan, adopted in September 1970, would turn the downtown into a series of malls, pedestrian walkways and open space parks. It has drawn fire from many businessmenand residents because it calls for elimination of the city's 180-space Municipal Parking Lot No. 1.

Several proposals to alter the plan — including one calling for an underground parking facility where the lot is now —have been presented to the council, but none has been adopted.

The council acted last night after receiving a statement from the county clerk that three groups seeking the ballot measure have collected 696 valid signatures, more than enough to put the issue on the ballot.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said the council could put the matter to voters itself or let the groups, including the Sausalito Citizens Council, chamber of commerce and businessmen's association, put the matter on the ballot.

The results of the vote will be advisory only and not binding on the council, Jordan said.

The advisory nature of the measure prompted Fraser to call it "a most amusing, ineffectual, poorly-prepared effort by a group of citizens to hamstring the city council for the next 20 years. It is ineffectual because it is merely advisory and I would hope that future councils will ignore it," he said before voting to put it to voters.

Later Fraser told the Independent-Journal the measure was "nothing but an effort by a small, greedy clique in the tourist business industry to deny the Sausalito resident use of his waterfront."

A 16-Count Indictment In Banks' Bomb Plot

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal grand jury returned a 16-count indictment Tuesday against Ronald Kaufman, 33, suspected of planting bombs in the safe deposit boxes of banks in Chicago, New York and San Francisco.

Kaufman has been the object od an FBI search since Jan. 9, two days after time bombs were found in eight banks in the three cities. The bombs were discovered after letters giving their locations were received by newsmen.

The indictment was returned before U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who presided over the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial after the 1968 Democratic National Convention. It listed four aliases for Kaufman, including the name he allegedly used to apply for safe deposit boxes at the banks and a name he allegedly used for a passport issued last month in San Francisco, also used when Kaufman enlisted in the Army earlier last year.

RONALD KAUFMAN
Indicted for bombs

The FBI said Kaufman was identified from fingerprints found on the bombs, handwriting comparisons and photos.

The FBI said wanted posters were being circulated in the United States and abroad, showing Kaufmun with both long hair and short hair.

Federal agents said they were checking airline passenger lists to see if Kaufman may have fled the country using the bogus passport. Kaufman was found to be AWOL from the Army Jan. 9, when he failed to show up for a troop fligtt to Germany. Authorities said he was registered in the Army under the alias of James Edward Jensen, the name used on the passport.

Authorities said Kaufman served in the Army in the 1950s, but re-enlisted Aug. 10, 1971 under the alias.

The wanted posters said Kaufman, a Milwaukee native, should be considered "armed and very dangerous."

Kaufman is also known as Christopher Charles Mohr, Christopher Curtis Mohr and Charles Owens. He is described by the FBI as about 5-foot-11, weighing 160 to 165 pounds, with brown hair.

Authorities said if Kaufman is arrested and convicted he faces 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count of the indictment, except for a five year maximum and a $5,000 fine on the mail threat charges.

Nixon To Give Congress Red-Ink Federal Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will send Congress a red-ink federal budget Monday calling for spending of about $246 billion in the fiscal year that begins next July 1, government sources said today.

The spending figure will be a record —as all recent federal budgets have been. It will show a deficit, probably between $10 billion and $20 billion, making it the 12th budget in the last 13 years in which spending exceeded revenues.

But the biggest shocker may be the administration's official reestimate of the deficio for the current fiscal year that ends June 30. Government sources said it would top $30 billion, perhaps coming close to $40 billion.

Treasury Undersecretary Paul Volcker, the only high-ranking official who would even alude to the matter in public, told newsmen Tuesday the deficit for the current fiscal year would be "exceptionally large." He would not cite a specific figure.

It is certain that the projected deficit for this year will be the largest since 1945.

Figures in the budget will show that Nixon, in his four years in office, has run up a greater total of deficit spending than any president in a single term except for the third term of Franklin D. Roosevelt which included most of World War II.

The projected deficits for the current fiscal year and the next one will be added to the actual deficit of $23.2 billion recorded in the fiscal year that ended last June 30 and the $2.8 billion deficit for the previous one, Nixon's first full fiscal year.

STOLEN MAYAN PILLAR FOUND IN CALIFORNIA

SANTA FE SPRINGS (UPI) — FBI agents yesterday seized a valuable archaeological find, a stone pillar weighing several tons and valued at $350,000 that was stolen from a jungle riverbank in Guatemala.

It was believed to be the first such recovery by U.S. law enforcement officers of a stolen Latin American archaeological treasure.

The Machaquila Stela, a relic of the ancient Mayan Indian civilization, was found in the unoccupied home of Clive Hollinshead in this Los Angeles suburb.

No charges have been filed, the FBI said, but the Stela was recovered on the grounds that "it is a violation of federal law to transport in interstate or foreign commerce any stolen property with a value of $5,000 or more."

Accused Sickle Slayer Tells Court Of Demons

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Accused sickle slayer Clarence Otis Smith said Tuesday "demons" which resembled "figures in picture negatives" infested his home.

"We burned down the shed (woodshed) to get rid of them but it didn't do much good," Smith said. "Only 40 to 60 per cent of them were destroyed. We saw some of them after that in the house."

The 44-year-old former garbage collector testified at his trial in Nevada County Superior Court on charges of killing two persons last July 12 at campground two miles from his home in the Sierra foothills.

Smith has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to charges that he hacked to death John Simmons, 29, of Colfax, and Donna Fitz Hugh, 28, of Ontario at the Dog Bar Campground.

Speaking in a calm voice, Smith told the jury he burned down the shed in December, 1970, because that's where "the demons lived". They had "infected my son and made him ill," he said.

Everett Richardson, a 20-yearold mail order preacher and close friend of Smith's, testified earlier as a prosecution witness that the defendant's house was "possessed with demons" and that he saw "at least 34 of them."

College Merger Talks Resumed

SOUTH BEND, Ill. (UPI)—Merger talks between the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College have resumed, the schools announced Tuesday.

Talks between the two neighboring Roman Catholic schools discontinued last November due to financial administrative differences. Student demonstrations, particularly at St. Mary's, an all-girl school, followed the talk breakdown.

The announcement followed a meeting between Notre Dame trustees and St. Mary's officials at Lake Forest, Ill.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Arms For Egypt

LONDON (UPI) — New substantial supplies of highly sophisticated Soviet weapons are to be shipped to Egypt in coming months, diplomatic sources said today.

The new weapons are intended to protect Soviet warships in the Mediterranean and to neutralize the U.S. 6th Fleet as well as increase Egypt's military potential, the sources said.

The new weapons' shipments were said to include MIG21 jets, a few MIG23s, a number of SU7 fighters bombers, more surface-to-air missiles (SAMS) and radar equipment as well as a number of ground-to-ground medium range missiles that potentially could be used for attacks on cities in Israel.

Launch Scheduled

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Sensitive satellites scheduled for launch this spring will relay information about seven volcanoes, including the San Cristobal, Nicaragua, crater which was dormant from 1685 until last year when it began spewing hot gases.

The network of Earth Resources Technology Satellites may lead to a detection network capable of predicting volcanic and earthquake activity which could warn of eruptions and save hundred of lives.

Dr. Peter Ward of the National Center for Earthquake Research in Menlo Park, Calif., told the Earth Resources Conference at the Space Center yesterday the proposal will first be tested with the spring launch.

Photo Workshops

A series of beginning photography workshops conducted by photographer Michael Bry will be held beginning tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at Golden West Photo, 351 Third Street in the Montecito Shopping Center in San Rafael.

New Governor

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Bill Waller took over as governor yesterday with a pledge to make his administration the most successful in the history of the state.

He promised a "progressive administration for economic and cultural growth, emphasizing "teamwork" in his relationship with the legislature.

State Rep. Robert Clark, the only black member of the legislature, said if Waller really meant involving all citizens, regardless of race, then "I'm ready to work with him." But he added: "If it will be on a discriminatory basis, I want no part of it."

Witness Killed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A 40-year-old man who had been scheduled to appear as witness in a case against the Irish Republican Army (IRA) was shot to death in his home last night while his family watched.

Sidney Agnew, 40, a bus driver, was shot in the doorway of his home in East Belfast's protestant Mount district. He was due to give evidence against several men accused of hijacking a bus.

Bank Saved

DETROIT (UPI) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., in an unprecedented action, has approved $60 million in emergency loans to prevent the collapse of Detroit's Bank of the Commonwealth.

The loan was approved yesterday and the FDIC assured depositors of the bank, among the nation's 50 largest, that their accounts were protected up to $20,000 under the FDIC's insurance program.

Without the loan the bank would be "in danger of closing," the FDIC said.

Not A Joke

DETROIT (UPI) — Valerie Schoen, the first girl nominated for admission to the U.S. Naval Academy, said today the whole idea started "as sort of a joke," — one she now is taking very seriously.

"I never thought this idea would get anywhere," the 18-year-old blonde said in a telephone interview from her dormitory room at the University of Michigan. "But now that it has, I'm all set to go. I just can't believe it."

Miss Schoen was nominated by Rep. Jack McDonald, R-Mich., one of a number of Michigan congressmen she contacted regarding her plans. McDonald's action upstaged Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who announced at a news conference in Washington yesterday his plan to nominate a New York girl for admission next week.

Italian Cuisine Ranked Poorly

PARIS (UPI)—Italian cooking still does not match that of France and if anything is getting worse, according to the new Michelin travel guide for Italy.

The 1972 guide lists no three-star restaurants — 12 are named in France —and only 13 two-star establishments. Overall 189 restaurants receive stars — one fewer than in 1971.

The only new restaurant in the two-star category is the Alfredo in Treviso, just north of Venice. The 84-page Michelin lists its specialities as marrow steak and salmon risotto.

The food in West Germany, however, never rises above a single star, according to the 1972 guide for Germany. A total of 174 get the one star treatment, 24 of them for the first time.

ANOTHER MARS LANDSCAPE

A new Mariner-9 photo of Mars released today by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena shows a vast chasm with branching canyons eroding the plateau in an area 300 miles south of the Mars equator. These features represent a type of landform evolution apparently unique to the planet. Subsidence along lines of weakness in the crust and possible deflation by Martian winds have sculptured this unique pattern. The picture was made from 1,225 miles away on Jan. 12 and covers an area 235 by 300 miles. (UPI Telephoto) tricts will be ready for the 1974 elections. This presumably will mean all 120 legislators will have to run for reelection in 1974, legislators said.

The ruling left room for the Legislature to come up with a reapportionment plan in time for this year's June primary election, but legislators agreed this was virtually impossible since county clerks already are pleading they have to begin organizing for the elections.

The stage for the court's ruling was set last month when Reagan vetoed the Assembly, Senate and congressional reapportionment plans passed by the Legislature. A host of suits was filed with the court to challenging the three vetos.

The court's ruling also repeated a 1965 decision that the five-member Reapportionment Commission was unconstitutional. The state constitution provided for such a commission to act when the Legislature failed to reapportion itself.

Chief Justice Donald R. Wright, in a 14-page opinion, wrote that "it will be far less destructive of the legislative process to allow the existing legislative districts, imperfect as they may be, to survive for an additional two years than for this court to accept, even temporarily, plans that are at best truncated products of the legislative process."

But the case of the congressional districts was different because five additional seats must be filled this year, the decision said. Unless some plan were adopted, the five seats would have to be filled by statewide elections.

This would be excessively expensive, unwieldly and a violation of federal law which requires congressional districts for each congressman, the court ruled.

The decision noted that the congressional plan, although vetoed by Reagan, "has the bipartisan support of all of the California members of the United States House of Representatives."

Accident After Hood Opens

A 29-year-old San Rafael woman was injured at 5:55 p.m. yesterday in an auto accident on southbound Highway 101 near Highway 17 in San Rafael, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said a car driven by Michael L.C. Flynn, 25, of 518 Elm Avenue, San Anselmo, stopped when the vehicle's hood sprung open, blocking his vision, and a second car, driven by Allen R.Mullis, 42, of 2181 Mill Road, Novato, also stopped.

The patrol said a third car, driven by Marjorie E. Patten, 29, of 2 Grande Paseo, San Rafael, was unable to stop, however, and struck the Mullis car. The Patten woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut lip, bruised right knee and left elbow.

A Surprise Request For Death Penalty

By MARY LEYDECKER

While attorneys in the nation's capital were arguing for abolition of the death penalty, a San Quentin convict and his lawyer yesterday demanded that the Marin District attorney seek capital punishment in his case.

The unusual request was made by Louis N. Talamantez, 28, one of the inmates charged in connection with the August violence at the prison, the convict went on trial yesterday in Marin Superior Court on a earlier assault charge.

As proceedings began, lawyers settled various legal matters before the jury was called in and Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas Told Judge E. Warren McGuire he would not ask the death penalty.

With that, Talamantez's attorney, G. Douglas Vaughn of San Rafael, jumped to his feet and said, "The district attorney can't do that."

Talamantez then joined in the discussion, saying, "We demand the death penalty."

Judge McGuire, who denied Vaughn's motion that the district attorney be forced to ask the jury to consider the death penalty, said it was the first time in long years of law practice that he had heard such a request.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, who called the request "unheard of," added that the move "borders on trifling with the client's life."

Vaughn explained his unusual action by saying that if the district attorney had asked the death penalty, he would have had 20 peremptory challenges against prospective jurors instead of 10, "and I'm going to need them all."

Talamantez, already serving five years to life for two Los Angeles robberies, is accused of assaulting Gonsalvo Hernandez, another Los Angeles robber, on March 12, 1970.

He is also charged with murder, assault and conspiracy in connection with the abortive escape attempt at the prison on Aug. 21 in which three prisoners and three guards died.

Vaughn reportedly turned down an offer by the district attorney's office during a pretrial conference to dispose of the earlier assault case by a plea to a lesser charge which would not have carried a mandatory life sentence.

(In Washington, the Supreme Court is hearing challenges to the death penalty by a condemned inmate confined to San Quentin Prison.)

shocking example of why young people riot.

"This is an example of why the people of this country as well as this state took to the streets, because they saw there was no relief by working within the system. And, in fact, I must say that today I would join them."

The usually soft-spoken lieutenant governor later added he did not intend literally to take to the streets, but insisted the court should have permitted the five-man Reapportionment Commission he headed to adopt plans itself. The court, however, ruled the commission was unconstitutional.

Reinecke also said he will consider appealing the court's unanimous decision, and if that fails may sponsor an initiative ballot measure to take away the Legislature's authority to reapportion itself.

Several Republican legislators echoed Reinecke's statements that the Legislature should not reapportion itself.

Both Democratic and Republican senators, however, blamed Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, for holding out for a highly partisan Democratic Assembly plan and for embroiling the Senate's bill in his jockeying.

Also expressing disappointment in the ruling was Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who had appealed in a court brief for guidelines to assure that the cities of Sebastopol, Petaluma and Sonoma would remain in a single district. The cities would have been split into two Assembly districts under the plan killed by the court.

Head Cuts Suffered As Automobile Skids

James Petersen, 24, of 455 Canal Street, San Rafael, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for head cuts suffered in an accident at 3:20 p.m. yesterday on Stage Gulch Road, east of Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said his car skidded on a curve and struck an embankment.

County Economic Opportunity Council. She also is a director of the Bay Area Social Planning Council.

Mrs. Boxer, her husband and their two children live at 286 North Almenar Drive. Before moving to Marin five years ago, Mrs. Boxer was a stockbroker in New York City.

Miss Ellinwood, who announced in November she would seek Michael Wornum's Southern Marin seat on the board of supervisors, said she reversed her decision at the urging of many Tiburon residents, primarily because "my heart is in Tiburon and that's my first area of concern."

She said several persons had appealed to her over the past 10 days to run for the council again but she had made no decision until meeting with a group of 35 on Monday. They urged her to run for the council again, she said.

Miss Ellinwood, 52, of 1810 Mountain View Drive, said, "I deeply regret the disappointment my withdrawal may bring to those who have pledged their support to me (for supervisor). With the county election five months away I am certain other potential candidates will come forward . . ."

She said many of the things she has fought for on the Tiburon Council "are just now emerging into the public arena and my candidacy is an expression of my hope to be able to see them to fruition in the next four years."

She said these include creation of a city recreation program; involvement of young people in city government; preservation of open space and development of downtown Tiburon "to remain a true cross-section community;" closer ties with Belvedere to work out common problems; further annexations, and a "personalizing of the city administration to the business community and the general public."

Miss Ellinwood served on the original city council from 1964 to 1966 and was elected to her present term in 1968. She also is chairman of the City-County Planning Council.

Center Plan Extension Delay Given

The Petaluma Planning Commission last night approved a one-year extension for submission of plans for an addition to the Petaluma Plaza Shopping Center.

Asst. Planner Richard D. A. Anderson said the commission agreed to the request of the center's attorney, Thomas E. Schaal. He said the center would still be held to a 30-month limit for a start in construction.

The commission also studied a proposed ammendment to the zoning ordinance which would establish a planned unit development district.

Anderson said the amendment would require developers to submit more detailed plans to give the commission a truer picture of what the end product would be.

He said the commission delayed action pending more information on new state laws setting requirements on open-space and conformity of zoning ordinances to general plans.

Chest Crushed As Auto Falls

A Rohnert Park man suffered a crushed chest yesterday when his car fell on him while he was doing repair work at his home.

Edmund R. Rioux, 38, of 516 Baron Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hillcrest Hospital.

Rohnert Park police said the car slipped off its blocks at 9:35 p.m., pinning him. Officers said a group of 12 boys walking home from a basketball game heard his screams and lifted the car.

SUIT

Real Estate Corp.; USI Management, Ltd.; United States Land Investment ;Ltd.; United States Income Property XI; United States Land Development XII; U.S. Real Estate Income Syndications; The San Marin Group, which has connections to the North Marin subdivision, and Sunset Whitney Ranch Investors.

Named as individual defendants in the complaint were Pollock, president and director of UFG; Walker, director; Gutierrez, director; Avedovech, assistant secretary, and Snider, the group's chief financial officer.

Pollack, 39, born in Colorado is an economics graduate of the University of Oregon. He lives at 89 Harbor Drive, and is said to have moved to Marin recently from Portland.

Normally Overseas Investment combines such as UFG are out of the reach of the SEC. However, the government contends that in this particular case the group became so entangled in domestic transactions, made such wide use of interstate commerce and the U.S. Mails in security transactions that it is operating unlawfully without being registered with the SEC.

The complaint is the second major suit to be filed in recent months against the investment combine. In October a multi-million dollar class action was brought against UFG by a German shareholder's protective association. The suit is still pending.

The SEC claims the defendants have distributed false and misleading financial statements in efforts to conceal a deteriorating monetary stance.

The commission further charges that as fiscal conditions worsened UFG saw real properties foreclosed to meet claims of creditors.

In asking a receiver be named, the SEC charged the defendants have committed a series of "indefensible breaches of trust in administration of investment plans created by UFG, including misappropriation, conversion and misuse of investors' funds and securities on a substantial scale."

Expanding Appearances Panel's Duties Win Council's Support

A proposal to expand the scope of Sausalito's community appearances advisory board was endorsed in principle last night by the Sausalito City Council. (Another Sausalito Council story, page 1.)

At the recommendation of the city planning commission, the council agreed the advisory board should have power to review plans for all single-family homes and for exterior remodeling of duplexes and multi-family residences.

The council asked the city attorney to prepare an ordinance to make the changes within 30 days.

The appearances advisory board already is empowered to review applications for zone changes, remodeling of commercial structures, advertising signs, local improvement and enhancement projects and encroachment permits.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

RAILROAD CARS — Ordered immediate removal of three railroad cars on the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way in front of Zack's restaurant, Bridgeway and Turney Street. Restaurant owner Sam Zakessian purchased the caboose and two box cars from the railroad last month and hopes to convert them into a restaurant. The council said Zakessian did not have the city permission to park the cars at the site.

ONE-WAY — Introduced an ordinance designating three downtown streets as one-way: Anchor Street will be eastbound; Humboldt Street, northbound, and Bay Street, westbound.

RESIDENT DISTRICT — Heard first reading of an ordinance establishing a resident commercial zoning district in the Caledonia Street area. The council agreed with the city planning commission that the zone should not be expanded to include the east side of Bridgeway to Humboldt Street, as originally proposed, and asked the city attorney to amend the proposed ordinance.

PARKING — Asked for a staff report on a plan by Councilman Robin Sweeny to remove 15 parking meters on Caledonia, between Johnson and Pine streets, and replace them with one or two-hour parking zones.

DISPOSAL — Rejected a proposal from the Pacific Marin Disposal Co. for an exclusive franchise to provide a solid waste disposal service for Sausalito's marinas. At the recommendation of City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr, council agreed to take no action on Marina waste disposal and await legislation on the subject now being prepared by the Association of Bay Area governments.

Wise Named Novato Citizen Of The Year

Lee C. Wise, a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. official, will be honored as "citizen of the year" at Novato's 12th anniversary celebration at the Novato Community House at 6 p.m. Friday.

It is the first year of the award, which will be given to a resident for distinguished public service, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown reported.

Wise, manager of the PG&E office in Novato, is near retirement after 40 years with the company.

He has served on the city planning commission, plan review committee and underground utilities committee.

Because of his regular attendance at city council meetings for many years, Wise has been called "Novato's sixth councilman."

Brown said Wise was selected by the council, but in future years the city will solicit nominations from residents and establish selection procedures for the award.

At Friday's dinner, the city also will give recognition to residents who have served on commissions and committees, and design awards will be rpesented for outstanding buildings in the city.

The birthday dinner-dance is sponsored by the Novato Chamber of Commerce. Merle Sebald is chairman.

Action On Moratorium Is Postponed

The Sausalito City Council last night postponed until its Feb. 1 meeting consideration of a proposed 90-day moratorium on all new subdivisions, lot splits and planned unit developments.

Mayor Alexander R. Imlay said the delay would give residents more time to become familiar with the ramification of "such an important issue."

The temporary development ban, recommended by the city planning commission, would give the city an opportunity to prepare comprehensive new subdivision regulations, as well as an open space plan for Sausalito.

Developments and subdivisions already under way would not be affected by the moratorium.

Drunks Expensive

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)— The city of Spokane spent $135,051 in 1971 to arrest and book skid row drunks, the rehabilitation service announced Tuesday.

Committee Roll Calls Are Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Ken MacDonald, D-Ojai, introduced a resolution Tuesday requiring roll call votes on bills in legislative committees when opposition is expressed.

Currently measures are approved or disapproved on a voice vote in committees.

Court To Probe Blaze To Liner

HONG KONG (UPI)—The Hong Kong government announced today a marine court will be set up to investigate the Jan. 9 fire that destroyed the 82,600-ton Seawise University, which formerly was the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth.

Art Michael McMullin, a judge of the supreme court, has been appointed to constitute the marine court, a government spokesman said.

The government has also requested an assessor from the United Kingdom to assist in the court inquiry, he said. "He has not been named but is expected to arrive in a few weeks," the spokesman said.

New Call For Transit Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A resolution asking the Metropolitan Transportation Commission of nine San Francisco Bay Area counties to study the feasibility of free public transportation has been introduced in the Senate.

Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, said Tuesday, that other areas in the country are experimenting with no-fare systems with mixed initial results.

But, he said, "it still may be true that a no-fare system may go a long way toward reducing urban problems such as transportation, congestion, air and noise pollution."

Marin parking to climb to $16,784.00 per hour.

Just five years ago, you could park in most lots for just a quarter an hour or so. Today you're lucky if it's a dollar. Our research staff has examined this and it appears that, at this quadrupling rate, parking will cost you $16,784.00 an hour by the year 2006. Well, we'd like to point out that we have a swell 250 car parking lot, so at the moment we offer free parking and charge only for our excellent food and drink. (But if our researchers are right, it will be the other way around in 2006. You can bet on that.)

RESCUE TRY FUTILE

Fellow workers dig for four men buried alive when the north side of a 28-foot sewer trench caved in at Lubbock, Tex. The bodies of the men were recovered early today after the cave-in occurred yesterday. The narrowness of the trench prevented immediate recovery of the bodies.

Behr's Plan For Upgrading Property

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A three-year moratorium on increased property taxes on home improvements was proposed today in legislation by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The moratorium would be in effect for improvements costing up to either $10,000, or half of the home's market value, whichever was less. It would not extend the tax break to improvements such as swimming pools, recreation areas and any work "not an integral part of the dwelling."

Behr's staff said this would exclude any structure not attached to the home.

The senator said his proposal would encourage upgrading of residential property, provide additional employment in the building trades, and discourage improvements done without building permits — which would be required to qualify for the moratorium.

A side benefit would be to increase the safety of home improvements that otherwise would not be subject to inspection if no building permits were obtained, he said.

Behr was to introduce the legislation today both as a bill and as a constitutional amendment, which would require voter approval.

A similar bill last year by Behr was killed because of opposition from county assessors, who objected to the loss of property tax revenue. The only major change made in the proposal this year by Behr was to add the $10,000 cost limit.

Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, also has introduced a bill granting homeowners a similar tax break for improvements. The Marks measure, however, would require the state to reimburse local government for any loss in taxes — a provision expected to bring opposition from the Reagan administration as an unnecessary additional state expense.

Firemen's Radio Missed, Then Is Returned

A portable two-way radio belonging to the San Rafael Fire Department was stolen from a fire truck parked near a fire station yesterday, but the $750 instrument was returned shortly by a College of Marin student after it was missed.

Firemen at Station Two, Union and Third streets, told police they were using the radio and put it down on a truck parked in the training yards. When they returned in a few moments, it was gone.

They said they questioned some youths seen nearby, but the youths told them they didn't have the radio. Soon, Dave Johnson of 843 Rincon Way, Santa Venetia, returned the radio to firemen, but would say only that he was returning it for some friends.

76 Strep Cases During Last Week

With 76 cases reported, streptococcus infection was the most prevalent communicable disease reported to the Marin County Health Department last week, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, health officer.

A total of 23 cases of gonorrhea and one each of measles, tuberculosis and infectious hepatitis also were reported.

BART Idea For Marin Is Setback

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and any other county outside the Bay Area Rapid Transit District would have to pay the entire cost of future extensions of the rail system into their areas under a bill by Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek.

His bill (SB 46) would require the district to "meet its service commitments" within the present three-county district before expending any funds outside the district. The district now includes only San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

Long-range plans to extdnd the BART system into Marin have foundered on its $1-billion-plus cost, and without financial support from BART such an extension could be pushed back even further into the future.

Plans For Car Wash Win Approval

Plans for a car wash and gasoline sales operation were approved yesterday by the Petaluma Board of Zoning Adjustments.

The board approved the request of Maynard Victor for the facility at 412 Petaluma Boulevard South.

Nixon Says U.S. Will Retaliate In Foreign Property Seizures

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon announced today that the United States will retaliate against foreign governments that seize private American property without payment by cutting off aid and opposing loans from the World Bank and other agencies.

Nixon outlined his tough policy concerning expropriation of private property in a four-page statement issued by the White House.

The President cited no nations in his statement but the government of Chile has recently expropriated American-owned copper mines and the new Pakistan government of President Azulfikai Ali Bhutto has recently announced nationalization of some private industry although American-investments have not been affected.

Nixon said under international law the United States has a right to expect that private property will be taken only for a public purpose and that U.S. citizens "will receive prompt, adequate and effective compensation from the expropriating country."

If American private prolerty property is seized without adequate compensation, he declared, "we will presume that the United States will not extend new bilateral economic benefits to the expropriating country."

In addition, Nixon said, "we will presume that the United States government will withhold its support from loans under consideration in multilateral development banks."

New TV Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Monte Markham —who starred in video's "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" —will play a guest role in an episode of "Medical Center" which will double as a spin-off for a new series of his own.

A Modified 'No-Fault' Insurance Plan Is Back

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A modified "no-fault" automobile insurance bill under which a driver's own insurance company would pay his benefits regardless of who caused an accident was introduced Tuesday in the Assembly.

The author, Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, said this system would reduce the cost of premiums, unclog the courts and save attorney fees for accident victims.

The bill was expected to become the 1972 Legislature's major proposal on controversial no-fault insurance.

A similar bill was killed last year by the Senate judiciary committee after passing the Assembly, but Fenton told a news conference there now is "quite a different atmosphere" and "pressure is being brought to bear" to pass no-fault legislation.

A CAFETERIA FOR TINY MIGRANTS

IDYLLWILD, Cal. — Ray P. Adams buys more than half a ton of sugar each year to pursue his hobby: feeding hummingbirds.

Adams has a hummingbird cafeteria consisting of 52 bottles which contain simple syrup, one part sugar, two parts water and colored with a red food dye. The bottles hang from a special rack. During the two and a half months when the birds gather, Adams figures he feeds from 3,500 to 4,000.

Only a few stay the year around. Most hummers, of which there are six varieties, are migrants. When they move, it is to find fresh flowers and they travel far south into Mexico in search of them. (Los Angeles Times Syndicate.)

YOUTH HUSTLED OFF

Student Ernie Long, believed to be one of the leaders in a near riot at Moreno Valley High School in Riverside County, is hustled into a sheriff's car. The disturbance broke out yesterday. The picture was taken by Tesuo Higuchi, a Japanese exchange student at the school, who filed it with United Press International.

Key Labor Boss Endorses Muskie

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine won the endorsement of a major union leader today when Jerry Wurf, president of the 500,000-member government workers union, declared him the best presidential candidate to lead the Democrats to victory.

Wurf, head of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, became the first union chief to take a public stand on any of the potential candidates.

He told a news conference: "It is our belief that if the Democratic party is to win in November, it must unite early around its strongest and best. And the strongest and best is, in my opinion. Sen. Ed Muskie."

Wurf's announcement did not signify that Muskie had sewed up across-the-board labor backing however. Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota also have strong allies among union ldaders.

Humphrey was in Ohio seeking to set up a slate of delegates which he hopes can deny some of the state pivotal delegation to Muskie who has the official endorsement of Gov. John J. Gilligan.

A less active prospect, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, who has declined to run in any of the Democratic presidential primaries, may yet find himself among the candidates in New Hampshire.

House sources in Washington said a group supporting the Arkansas Democrat planned to unveil a write-in campaign for him today at Concord, N.H.

Mills, one of the most powerful men in Congress due to his chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee, has said he hoped to be able to swing some weight when the Democrats hold their nominating convention, but he has not been an active candidate. The New Hampshire race already is crowded with four other Democrats — Sens. Muskie, George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Vance Hartke of Indiana, and Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles.

Mills' name cannot appear on the New Hampshire ballot because filing for the election ended Jan. 7.

McGovern, in a busy campaign swing that will take him from New Hampshire to Washington and on to Florida all within the space of a few hours today, released what he called an alternate defense budget — one that he would be able to implement if he were in the White House when the 1975 fiscal year rolls around. Among other things, the McGovern budget would devote one-third less to defense spending and would require one-third fewer men on active duty.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was in California —a state he said he has the best chance of any Democrat of carrying against President Nixon. He said he was optimistic about his chances in the March 14 Florida primary —and indicated that Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace is leading the field right now in that state.

"It would be a real blow to the party if Wallace wins in Florida," Jackson said.

Wallace's name officially went on the Florida ballot Tuesday with nine other Democrats and three Republicans. Democratic State Chairman Jon C. Moyle of Palm Beach said he had reservations about listing Wallace as a Democrat and "I'm assuming that Governor Wallace is not playing games with the Democrats of Florida."

Wallace's candidacy produced another rift within the Democratic ranks. Sen. David H. Gambrell, D-Ga., told Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien to quit attacking Wallace. He said O'Brien's job was to keep the party in harmony and to deprive Wallace of "an opportunity to be heard by demeaning his candidacy is an undemocratic act".

Dock Strike Halts Arms To Vietnam

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A ban on the shipment of all military cargo, including guns and ammunition for the Vietnam War, was imposed by West Coast shippers Tuesday in a move to hasten a settlement in the renewed longshoremen's strike.

Ships currently in port for military equipment and supplies were being loaded today but they will be the last vessels available, the Pacific Maritime Association said.

About 70 merchant ships caught at sea by the strike have diverted to Vancouver, B.C., straining the port facilities there, while other vessels headed toward Ensenada, Mexico for unloading.

During the previous 100-day walkout by the 15,000-member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, dockworkers at some ports received about two days pay a week for moving military cargo and passenger ship baggage, both of which were exempted during the strike.

The shippers were not "fighting the government" by the ban on military cargo movement, but were only seeking a quick settlement, a PMA spokesman said.

A Military Sea Lift Command spokesman said that if shipping companies comply with the embargo, only a "minute fraction" of military supplies would be able to move from the West Coast. During the past six months, 2.3 million tons of cargo destined for Vietnam and other U.S. Pacific bases was carried by PMA merchant ships.

The move may hasten congressional action to halt the strike or allow movement of vital supplies.

Talks between the ILWU and the PMA collapsed after a marathon weekend session in which agreement was reached on most major issues except the financing of a $5.2 million guaranteed annual wage.

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon met Tuesday with White House officials on behalf of seven western governors and said action should be taken immediately to "get the longshoremen back to wgrk."

Ex-Felon Says Jackson Struck Soledad Guard

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An ex-convict testified Tuesday that he saw black revolutionary George Jackson strike Soledad Prison guard John V. Mills three times and was "shocked" at witnessing the slaying of the officer.

Another inmate previously testified that he saw Jackson hit Mills and toss him from a three-tier railing to the concrete floor below.

Jackson was killed at San Quentin Prison last August in an alleged escape attempt in which six persons died. The two surviving "Soledad Brothers" charged with Mills' murder are presently on trial.

"I had never seen anyone get killed before or even beat up so bad," William Worzella, now on parole, testified under cross examination in Superior Court.

Worzella said he saw Jackson swing a "silvery object"— previously identified as a flashlight—at the guard and strike him three times.

John Clutchette, 28, and Fleeta Drumgo, 26, are accused of the January, 1970 slaying and have been identified as being at the scene when Mills was killed.

Hike In Welfare Benefits Ordered

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—County officials were instructed by state Welfare Director Robert Carleson Tuesday to implement a section of the welfare reform law raising benefits for most recipients in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

He said the increases would raise the AFDC maximum benefit level from $261 a month to $280 for a family of four. They will be made retroactive to Oct. 1, 1971, the date the new law went into effect.

Innocent Plea In Morals Case

Don Bailey, 44, of Sausalito, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to four felony sex charges — rape, sodomy and two counts of sex perversion.

A preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 15.

He was arrested Jan. 13 after Larkspur police stopped him about a minor traffic matter about 3 a.m. A young couple in the car with him said he had taken them to his boat in Sausalito, raped the woman and forced both under death threats to perform sexual acts with him.

The couple told police Bailey had promised them jobs as cook and maintenance man aboard his boat after he picked them up hitchhiking.

CHAMBER PRESIDENT — Gerald P. Flannery, San Rafael, a civilian attorney serving as the deputy staff judge advocate for the Oakland Army Base, has been named president of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Bail In Murder Plot Case Cut

A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 27 in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for Una Mettam, 42-year-old San Rafael woman accused of trying to arrange the murder of her husband.

Judge Peter Allen Smith refused for the second time to release Mrs. Mettam without bail but he did reduce bail from $50,000 to $10,000. Mrs. Mettam's attorney, William O. Weissich, said he did not think the woman could post that amount.

It was also learned yesterday that Mrs. Mettam had resigned her job as an accounting clerk at San Quentin.

She is accused of trying to persuade a service station operator to arrange the death of her husband in an auto accident in order to get $90,000 in insurance she had taken out.

The husband, Frank Ronald Mettam, is a San Francisco cab driver.

Guilty Plea To Burglary By Father

A husband accused of being part of a family-style burglary pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to one count of burglary while charges against his wife were dismissed.

Theodore Edward St. Andre admitted he had burglarized a home in Mill Valley Dec. 29. A second charge involving another burglary the same day in Mill Valley was dismissed as well as two counts of burglary against his wife, Sylvia Ann.

Five children of the couple, ranging in age from 7 to 13 were also suspected of being involved in family theft outings. Two young girls were with their mother when she was arrested in Mill Valley.

St. Andre is to appear in superior court Monday for setting of a sentencing date on the felony charge.

SIDNEY STERN

California has doubled in population since I opened my first Fireside office with my wife Vera. Fireside has grown, too, in 20 years. 52 Statewide offices now; more planned. Assets approaching $100,000,000.00. Just as important to me, however, as growing assets and increasing offices is maintaining a "personal family relationship" with the people we serve! "SMALL ENOUGH to KNOW YOU... LARGE ENOUGH to SERVE YOU" is the rule I have followed and will always follow. My thanks to each of you who have sought out our institution... where the BIG DIFFERENCE is GENUINE FRIENDSHIP!

Faithfully,

McCarthy To Share Writers' Spotlight

Russian poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, and Eugene McCarthy, poet and presidential aspirant, head the list of authors who will appear at the College of Marin's third annual writers' conference Feb. 11-13.

Yevtushenko will be making his first Northern California appearance since 1966 to plug his latest book, "Stolen Apples."

The 38-year-old poet, who has been known to flail his arms, gyrate his body and roll his eyes while reciting, will read his works at 8 p.m. in the college's gymnasium. The poems will be translated into English by an associate.

The readings by McCarthy, best known for his anti-war challenge to President Lyndon B. Johnson and his reentry into the presidential race this year, will highlight the workshop's first day. He will read from his works at 8 p.m. Feb. 11 in the gym.

McCarthy has been teaching poetry for the past year after a long career as a Minnesota senator.

In addition to three books on politics, he has published a volume of poetry, "Other Things and the Aardvark."

Six other writers will participate each of the three days in panel discussions, seminars and individual readings at the Fine Arts Theater.

They are Frank Herbert, a science fiction writer; John Logan, a poet and former poetry editor for "The Nation" and "Critic" magazines; Leonard Nathan, a professor at the University of California; Margaret Shedd, a fiction writer; Harold Silverman, editor of the California Living supplement to the Sunday San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle, and Al Young, actor, magazine editor and novelist.

Tickets may be reserved at the Office of Community Education at the college in Kentfield. Tickets are available for the entire program or for individual readings.

The conference is sponsored by the college's English department. Cochairmen are Rosalie Brown and Adrienne Marcus.

County Takes 1st Steps In Sanitation Merger

Over the warnings of sanitary district officials, the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday took its first move toward possible consolidation of eight Central and Southern Marin sanitary districts.

Acting on the recommendation of County Administrator John F. Barrows, the board unanimously approved forwarding the merger proposal to the county's local agency formation commission for recommendation.

The consolidation, proposed by Barrows, calls for dissolving the eight districts — including the mammoth Ross Valley Sanitary District — and combining collection, treatment and disposal of waste under the Marin Municipal Water District.

Other affected sanitary districts would include Alto, Homestead, Richardson Bay, Almonte, Sausalito-Marin City and Tiburon in the Richardson Bay watershed, and the Corte Madera Sanitary District in the Corte Madera Creek watershed.

Sanitary districts, in a counter-proposal, have suggested that an "umbrella agency" be created over them to handle treatment and disposal of the waste. Collection then would remain a local function under individual districts.

Barrows, who said improvement proposals have been under study for five years without much progress, argued that his proposal reduced the size of government and the number of taxing agencies.

"I feel it's more advantageous to consolidate them than to continue with separate sanitary districts," he said, ". . .taxpayers, voters and services would be better served."

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera, a member of that community's sanitary district board, warned that the proposed "superagency" would "get a negative vote from the people of Corte Madera. . ."

Two of the districts involved —Richardson Bay and Ross Valley —are under fire from the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board for failing to meet treatment standards, he said. In some cases, the districts —not Corte Madera's — have been forbidden to make sewer connections to new construction.

The Corte Madera district has spent considerable time and money keeping up to date, Colthurst said, and he therefore was opposed to consolidating with other districts and taxing Corte Madera residents to help bring other district procedures up to standards.

Concept Of Novato Pool Is Approved

Novato Unified School District trustees last night approved the concept of a joint district-city swimming pool at San Marin High School.

The proposal, discussed for several years, was given a push by a request from the San Marin High School Parent-Faculty Club.

Larry V. Irvin, representing the club, proposed that the district provide the land and a joint operation plan as now exists at Novato High School, where the pool is used by the district and the city recreation department.

Board President Ronald D. Schenck said the board "would be happy to participate," providing an agreement can be worked out with the city, which had indicated interest in building a swimming pool.

Supt. James G. Bunker said the problem is that some persons believe a pool should be on city property and others believe it should be on school district land.

During city council discussions, there has been talk of possibly locating a pool on the O'Hair property, south of the high school, if it is obtained as a major city park.

Schenck suggested that the board indicate it is ready to proceed on a pool, and this might spur the city to make a decision on a pool site. Trustees authorized Bunker to explore the idea with city officials.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

GIFT — Received a gift of $600 from the Hamilton-Meadow Park School, proceeds from a boutique, to be used at both Hamilton School and Meadow Park schools.

TEACHER — Approved an in-service training day for teachers on Feb. 28, an all-day session, which means that classes will be closed.

SUMMER — Gave preliminary approval to a summer school program, June 26-July 28 for elementary pupils, and June 26-Aug. 4 for junior high and high school students.

FOOD — Received a report that the food services operation throughout the district had a profit of $2,000 through Dec. 31.

ART — Received an invitation from Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley to attend an art workshop at Lynwood School at 7 p.m. Feb. 1, just prior to the next board meeting.

SCHEDULE — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Feb. 1 at Novato High School lecture hall, set a special meeting on educational goals at 8 p.m. Feb. 8 at the hall, and switched its second meeting next month to Feb. 22 because Bunker and Schenck will be away at a conference on the regularly scheduled date, Feb. 15.

Trustee Marret B. Boissevain was absent because of illness.

Former Movie Beauty, Succumbs

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) —An autopsy was performed today on Rochelle Hudson, movie beauty of the 1930s and 40s.

The body of Miss Hudson, 50, was found sprawled Monday on the bathroom floor of her home at the Palm Desert Country Club by Walter Price, with whom she worked in a real estate office.

Miss Hudson appeared in more than 75 movies, including starring roles with Wallace Beery and Frederick March.

She appeared in "Queen of Broadway" in 1942 with Buster Crabbe, then retired from films until she appeared in "Rebel Without a Cause" with James Dean and Natalie Wood in 1955.

Security Check Complaint Aired

A Mill Valley woman, embittered by a security check at the Marin Hall of Justice, implored county supervisors yesterday not to "let this intolerably injustice to your constituents go on indefinitely."

Joan B. Panek of 220 Julia Avenue said she and a companion were stopped by a deputy sheriff Monday after mistakenly entering an "off limits" stairway.

"We had to show identification and a form was filled out on each of us," she said angrily. "This is the same form used by an officer in the field when he discovers someone engaged in a suspicious activity."

She claimed the form would be "checked for any police record and filed for future reference."

"I object most strongly to being treated in this manner," she continued. "I am not willing to surrender my rights and freedoms on the minimal chance that some fluke will turn up a crackpot bomber."

Supervisors, after brief discussion, agreed that the identification form filled out on the woman should be returned, along with a letter from county Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos assuring no copy was made.

Mountanos, reached by the Independent-Journal later, said the filing of FI (Field Investigation) forms is routine and is used solely for future reference. No background investigation is made, he said.

He, along with Lt. Ronald Retana, who heads Civic Center security, said none of the "hundreds" of forms filled out since tight security began 17 months ago have been used for any other purpose

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

CLOSED — Met behind closed doors for more than an hour to discuss legal matters arising from two suits brought against the county. One involves a $1.5 million suit brought by the contractor of the Hall of Justice and the other a suit filed by the Town of Ross against the county flood control district.

POLLUTION — Approved a $2,200 contract with the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District for a study of air quality in Marin and a projection of air quality in the 1980s and 1990s.

HOUSING — Set Feb. 1 for a public hearing on an amendment to the zoning code to allow multiple family dwellings for low and moderate income families to be constructed in single family residential neighborhoods.

CONSERVATION — Agreed to extend for 120 days the timetable for planning commission hearings on proposed rezoning within the county's agricultural preserve. Rezoning has been under consideration for months.

PUBLIC RELATIONS — Approved a $2,300 contract with Jules Becker of Ross to serve as public relations director for the annual Marin County Fair.

DOCK FREEZE — Lifted a temporary freeze on issuance of building permits for docking facilities on Corte Madera Creek after the county counsel advised a ban was probably illegal. The ban had been requested by conservationists pending an environmental study on motorboating on the creek.

ASSISTANT — Authorized a half-time position at $385 per month for a Marin County Fair assistant. The action was at the request of Marcelle McCoy, fair manager.

CHILD CARE — Gave the Family and Childrens Service Advisory Committee the job of countywide child care planning.

ENVIRONMENT — Received a copy of a proposed environmental protection policy from Werner Von Gundell, county planning director, and authorized a half-time position at $2,667 for the remainder of the fiscal year in order to continue environmental studies in connection with the state and federal governments.

Loretta Young Wins TV Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A jury Tuesday awarded Loretta Young more than half a million dollars to compensate for her embarrassment because European television viewers saw her whirl through her video doorway in the clothes and hair styles of the 1950s.

Miss Young, 58, sued the NBC for $1.9 million because the network sold her old shows to European stations with her opening and closing appearances as hostess included.

Her suit charged that NBC violated an agreement by selling the shows for viewing abroad without cutting the opening and closing shots. She desired to present an appearance as an elegant woman of taste, and was embarrassed that style-conscious foreign viewers should see her in outmoded dresses and hairdos, Miss Young testified.

Sleep-In Vehicle Owners Win Round

To the applause of an audience of so-called "street sleepers," Marin County supervisors yesterday junked a proposed ordinance aimed at prohibiting living and sleeping in vehicles.

Instead, they directed county staff to draft a measure that would permit such use of vehicles if properly equipped with sanitary facilities.

Consideration of the proposed ordinance — dragged out of mothballs last month — came at the request of Supervisor Louis H. Baar, who received a 167-signature petition from Bolinas residents urging action against what was described as a growing number of transients in West Marin.

Baar argued yesterday that it was unfair to taxpaying residents "who abide by the law" to be forced to accept those who don't by living in vehicles unequipped with sanitary or garbage facilities.

Baar was supported by several residents, including Alonzo Nelson of Bolinas, who said his community is being "infiltrated" by everything from buses and vans to tents and teepees.

He said "pollution in the rawest form" can be found lying on the ground — left by "the same ones shouting to the rooftops about ecology."

About 10 persons, many of whom said they live in trucks and vans, told the board they had no choice of living facilities since the county lacked low-rent housing and public facilities.

Doris Fabrecant, a College of Marin student who lives in a truck, said that under the proposed ordinance, she could not continue to live in her truck even though it is equipped with sanitary facilities, which she has emptied once a week in Novato.

"I don't feel I'm cluttering up the country," she said, adding she prefers to "wake up under the trees than in gravel-filled mobile home parks."

Judith Weston of Bolinas said she had no problems with those living in vehicles and charged that stories of raw waste on the roadsides were an exaggeration.

After lengthy discussion on legal implications of such an ordinance, supervisors agreed — though no vote was taken — to refer the entire matter to the county staff and planning commission for drafting of a new proposal.

Tennis Club Eyed On Marist Land

A private tennis club may be developed on a portion of St. Peter Chanel Seminary, 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, if tentative sale plans for the property go through.

The seminary chapel building and a dormitory — on a total on one acre of the 10-acre property — already has been sold to the Marin Civic Ballet Association for use as the associations' headquarters and school.

According to San Rafael real estate agent Anthony Costello, sale of the rest of the seminary property — broken into three parcels — is now being negotiated.

The sales are in preliminary stages of negotiations, according to Ref. Leonard Ferringo, Marist provincial for the San Francisco area, but tentative

Sale of another building, called lodge hall, on eight-tenths of an acre, for continued use by various organizations now using it as a meeting place;

Sale of an I-shaped, 3.3-acre parcel, with a gymnasium and office building and dormitory, to the Assembly of God Church;

And sale of a four-acre ballpark area to a private firm for construction of a private tennis club.

Costello said all potential purchasers would seek use permits from the city before sales are completed.

Purchase prices were not disclosed.

Father Ferringo said the Marists would continue to occupy the site until sales were completed.

The priests purchased the property for $400,000 in 1955 from the Tamalpais School for Boys, which had occupied the site for 77 years.

About 12 seminary students are still living at the site, Father Ferringo said, but they will move to Berkeley or San Francisco, where they take classes at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley or the University of San Francisco.

Robber Given Vacaville Time

Lester Matthew Beckett, 20, of Petaluma, who had pleaded guilty to a robbery at Joe's Crossroads Tavern north of Novato on Sept. 27, has been sent to the state medical facility at Vacaville for 90-day evaluation period.

A crime partner, Douglas Richard Callahan, also 20, and with no known address, earlier had been sent for the same presentencing evaluation.

The pair and a 15-year-old were arrested after a high-speed chase by deputies when they were seen leaving the tavern.

Beckett was sent to Vacaville by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court.

Classified Employees Get Raise

The Marin County Board of Education has granted classified employees a raise that averages 2.8 per cent.

According to Asst. Supt. Thomas E. Spain, the raise granted Monday for 127 non-teaching employees will cost an additional $19,000 this fiscal year. It is effective back to Nov. 14, 1971.

However, according to Spain, the board refused to grant a 4 per cent cost-of-living increase and an automatic 5 per cent raise to 10-year employees. The panel said the matters will be negotiated for 1972-73, Spain said.

The Marin County Board of Education also:

NEW TEACHER — Hired Linda Cimoli as an instructional aide.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of a secretary Mary Wolbert, who quit for family reasons.

PENINSULA TRANSFERS — Approved the transfer of Thomas Lerksi from San Francisco to Henry C. Hall School and of Sherlyn Donovan from the San Mateo County school system to Neil Cummins School in the Larkspur district.

MONEY — Applied for $543 in federal funds under Phase I, Title II, of the Elementary Secondary Education Act, which provides funds for library improvement.

RULES — Gave first reading to a volume of rules and regulations for the Marin County Schools Personnel Commission governing employees' promotions, benefits and rights.

BUDGET — Reviewed the portion of the total budget dealing with state supported functions for 1972-73. Income was estimated at $405,084; expenses at $410,082.

Two Professors Receive Grants

Dr. Garrison Sposito, physics, and Dr. David L. Eck, chemistry, both received grants of $2,000.

Sposito began research in 1968 in liquid helium while Eck will continue research in carbonium ion.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

Take Careful Note Of Trump Lead In Play Against Slam

Most good players agree that the worst opening lead against a slam is a trump. If, in spite of this, a good players leads a trump against your slam contract you should wonder why he has abandoned his principles. It is very likely that he has length and strength in your side suit and hopes to prevent you from ruffing that suit in the dummy.

COUNTS CAREFULLY

When today's hand was played, declarer counted his tricks carefully and saw that he could make the slam with three clubs, two diamonds, one heart, four normal trump tricks and two ruffs in the dummy. He therefore took the first trick with the ace of spades, cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy, returned to his hand with the king of clubs and tried to ruff another heart in dummy.

East overruffed, and South could make only 11 tricks. Declarer would have landed on his feet if the trumps had divided 3-3 or if the clubs had broken evenly, but both suits broke normally with four in one opponent's hand and two in the other hand.

SIMPLE DEVICE

South should make the slam by a simple device. He takes the first trick with dummy's ace of spades and plays a low club form each hand. He plans to get four club tricks and only one ruff in the dummy.

If the defenders return a second trump, South wins in his own hand, cashes the ace of hearts and ruffs a heart in dummy. Then he returns to his hand with the ace of diamonds, draws the rest of the trumps, clears the king of clubs out of the way and enters dummy with the king of diamonds to run the rest of the clubs.

BAD BREAK

The trump opening lead should warn South to expect a bad break in hearts, and he should therefore not seek two heart ruffs in the dummy.

Kidnap Plot Of Envoy Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has confirmed a report that America's ambassador to Iran, Douglas MacArthur II, and his wife were the victims of an attempted kidnaping in November 1970.

It said the MacArthurs were returning to their residence late at night when their limousine encountered roadblocks. MacArthur told the driver to get away and although shots were fired and one car window was smashed with an ax, they escaped. It said a terrorist force was to blame and some of its members are to be tried shortly.

SPICY SEAFOOD is a suggestion to the weight-conscious for a tasty dinner entree. Here it is served with zucchini and green beans with a side dish of cucumbers.

Think Positive When Dieting: Try Seafoods To Shed Pounds

So, you've been trying to "diet in quiet" as Odgen Nash humorously advised, but you're discouraged. Those unwanted pounds aren't disappearing fast enough, and the waistline bulge is still spoiling the fit of your clothes.

Doctors and nutritionists, aware of the difficulties of dieting, would assure you that you shouldn't give up, because there is a way to lose weight and increase vitality at the same time. Here's how — explore the world of fish and shellfish.

Eliminate negative thoughts and set sail on a diet routine that accentuates the positive. Fishery products can slim you while you enjoy every bite. The reason is that seafoods are high in valuable protein, vitamins, and minerals, while being low in sodium, fat, and calories. But choose recipes planned for dieters, not those loaded with butter or rich sauces.

BEGIN YOUR diet routine with a tasty entree that offers a maximum of flavor.

Spicy seafood is a diet dandy with only 130 calories per serving. This recipe offers you a choice of thick fish fillets such as cod, pollock, or, if you prefer, choose halibut or snapper. Marinate the tender fillets for about 30 minutes in a zippy sauce made from tomato juice accented with a touch of vinegar and highlighted with old-fashioned French dressing mix. What could be simpler? Baste the fillets with the remaining sauce while they broil — just long enough to flake easily. This satisfying entree has the ultimate in flavor and taste, and you'll want to serve it again and again long after you've lost those extra pounds and no longer need to diet.

SPICY SEAFOOD

2 pounds cod or other thick fish fillets, fresh or frozen
⅔ cup tomato juice
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 envelope (⅝ ounce) old-fashioned French dressing mix

Thaw frozen fillets. Skin fillets and cut into serving-size portions. Place fish in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting.

Place fish on a well-greased broiler pan. Broil about four inches from source of heat for four to five minutes. Turn carefully and brush with sauce. Broil four to five minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Add American blue cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Put peas in a sieve; pour boiling water over them to defrost but not cook. Drain well. Place alternate layers of peas, eggs, potato chips and blue cheese sauce in a buttered 1-½ quart casserole. Top with crumbled bacon. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350 degree oven about 20 minutes. Yield: six medium servings.

Top with crumbled blue cheese and potato chips and bake in 375 degree oven for 20 minutes, until mixture is thoroughly heated. Makes four servings.

Plantation Soup Sticks To The Ribs

Plantation soup is one which our forefathers might have savored. It is a stick-to-the-ribs soup with a rich homespun flavor which hints of its convenient ingredients. . . bright orange carrots, small early peas, chopped celery and onion. The soup base is made from instant mashed potatoes, blended with milk. Because this soup uses cupboard ingredients, you can keep everything on hand and prepare Plantation Soup any evening. Serve it for supper.

PLANTATION SOUP

1 8½-oz. can carrots, drained and diced
½ cup chopped celery
½ chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
4 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon
3½ cups water
2 cups instant potato buds
2½ cups milk
½ teaspoon lemon juice
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 17-oz. can small early peas, drained chopped chives

In large saucepan, saute carrots, celery and onion in butter until tender. Add chicken bouillon and water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer 15 minutes. Stir in potato buds and milk. Add lemon juice, salt, pepper and peas. Heat through. Garnish with chives. Serves six to eight.

DAILY AFFAIR

'The Hole' Truth About Swiss Cheese

By Lucia Mouat
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LANGNAU, Switzerland — If you can get up early enough, it's the best show in town.

Here in the heart of Berne Canton cheese-makeing is a daily affair, and like the bakery business, the action is over by the time most townspeople are out of bed in the morning.

The produce in this particular region is hole-ridden Swiss cheese (Emmental to the Swiss), and once you've seen it from the milk up, you'll be inclined to munch it with new appreciation.

In Langnau alone there are six small Emmental cheese factories. By the time I arrived at one of them — Kaserei Ilfis — at a few minutes after 7 one morning, Herr Rentsch and his two helpers already had poured the morning's fresh milk supply into three heated copper-lined vats. Each vat is the size of a child's swimming pool and holds 300 gallons.

During the two hours it takes to reach the right consistency and temperature to move to phase two of the cheesemaking process, mechanized and hand stirring keep the milk swirling at an often frenetic rate. Herr Rentsch and his staffers, wisely protected for the occasion by rubber boots and rubber aprons, frequently dip in with a cupped hand to check on the progress.

ONCE THE CHEESE has begun to solidify, Herr Rentsch pours a milk can full of water into the milk and chemical mix. The purpose, as he explains in French (which is neither his native language nor mine but the only one in which we have a few words in common), is to make the mix "un peu plus elastique."

Now the nets and three black cheese molds which have been waiting beside the vats on a sink suddenly become active props. Hastily, Herr Rentsch and one of the boys secure one of the nets to a large metal loop that is immersed and scraped across the bottom of one of the vats, raking in the solid bits of cheese as thoroughly as one might catch a school of fish. The corners of the net are gathered at the top, and the cheese, dripping with milk, is hoisted onto a waiting hook, attached to the ceiling and swung over to the sink where it is dropped into one of the waiting circular molds.

At this point the squeeze begins. The workers beat and push down on the netted cheese. When they have done as much as they can, a large wooden slab is fitted over the top and bottom of the mold, and a mechanized metal presser is put to work.

The nuggets of pure cheese left in the end, once the surplus milk has drained, make a small enough package to make one realize why cheese costs as much as it does. As the cheese was removed, the level of milk in each vat sank by only three or four inches. Herr Rentsch points out that only about 8 per cent of the total volume has been touched.

ONCE THE CHEESE is removed, the vats are promptly drained, and an employee jumps into each with his rubber boots on to give it one of the most vigorous scrubdowns you will ever see.

When the cheese is pressed and sits for a day or so, it is carried to the cellar beneath Herr Rentsch's small factory store where it is placed without its wooden mold in a sink of salted water. Soon, its crust already begun, it is placed beside the sink and salted and turned frequently. In another two weeks, the three slabs of cheese will be moved into a warm room and placed on shelves.

Here the cheese stays for at least a month, and Herr Rentsch can check its state of fermentation or ripeness with a small hammer and other tools. He can tell precisely how large the holes that make Emmental unique are getting to be.

AS IT HAPPENS, the Swiss like a relatively ripe, or aged, Swiss cheese. It is the Americans who like it fairly young — six months old or so — with large holes. Italians are known to like this brand when it gets to be a year old or more.

When Herr Rentsch wants to stop the ripening, he simply moves the 200-pound slabs, each about three feet in diameter, into a cold-storage room in another part of his cellar.

Once you've seen it in the making, Swiss cheese will never taste the same again!

We Reserve The Right To Refuse Sales To Commercial Establishments

CRAFT CO-ORDINATOR for the Annex in San Rafael, Barbara Austin (right) holds a pillow made and painted by Linda Wilkinson (left.) The pillow is among the handcrafted items on sale at the Pobble, a non-profit gift shop selling items made by handicapped and other persons, located in Ignacio Plaza in Novato. Of the 20 Bay Area agencies participating in the operation of the shop, 13 are based in Marin County.

THE POBBLE

Crafts Sold At Unusual Store

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Handicapped persons are creating handcrafted items for a gift shop with the unique name of the Pobble in Ignacio Plaza.

The idea for the shop to sell items made by the handicapped was realized when the Rev. Joseph Kennedy of The Church in Ignacio showed the owner of Pacheco Plaza some of the handcraft items made by the handicapped living in Clausen House in Oakland. The owner of the Plaza located in Ignacio, said he would make a building available.

Father Kennedy, a member of the board of directors of Clausen House, which has four homes for the handicapped, felt that there should be an outlet for all handcraft made by the handicapped in the area.

On Oct. 5 the Pobble was opened, co-sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy of Marin. Volunteers for Cerebral Palsy of Marin distributed 14,000 brochures about the Pobble, which is a link between the producing agencies and the store.

The name of the store was chosen for a nonsense poem by Edward Lear, who said the Pobble is a creature of innocence and affection.

It begins:

"The Pobble who has no toes
Had once as many as we. . ."

And ends:

"It's a fact the whole world knows
That Pobbles are Happier without their toes."

Anne Gulledge, manager of the Pobble and also employdd at Clausen House, said Dr. Rudolph S. Kupfer, supervisor of special education, Marin County Schools, organized all the agencies in Marin through summer commitments to help stock the store and keep it open. The 26-year-old Miss Gulledge graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles as an art major. Her first association with the handicapped when she came to Marin was as an employee at Cedars development center in Ross.

Twelve agencies were participating when the Pobble opened. The first month the gift shop was barely able to pay for the lights in the building, Anne said.

The income tripled, however in December and 20 agencies and some individuals now participate. Eighty per cent of the funds are returned to the participating agency and 20 per cent is kept to maintain the Pobble, a non-profit organization.

Among the many handcrafted items for sale are crocheted items, pottery, candles, pillows and jewelry. Miss Gulledge says they are in need of more items, especially items for men.

"The Pobble extends an invitation to any individual or organization to sell its handcrafted items to help pay the bills to run the shop," Miss Gulledge said. "We also need volunteers to help as clerks in the store," she added.

One of the participants in the program at the Pobble is the Annex, a part of the Marin Community Workshop, Inc., in San Rafael.

"The Annex helps to round out the services of the workshop by providing opportunities to develop non-work skills," said Gary Hermes, coordinator of the Annex.

The Annex program has been in operation since March of 1971 and has 14 physically or mentally handicapped persons involved regularly. There is also a drop-in program for individuals, some of them sent to the Annex by the Marin County Department of Public Social Services.

Of the 20 participating agencies in the Bay Area, including organizations for the handicapped, churches and individuals, 13 of them are Marin and Sonoma County agencies.

They are Cedars Development Foundation of Marin in Ross; Marin Easter Seal Society, Adult Recreation Program; Lane Children's Center in Sebastopol; Magnolia Park School in San Rafael; Marin Community Mental Health Center; Marin Community Workshop in San Rafael; Marin Parents of Hearing Impared Children; Muscular Dystrophy Association, Marin County Chapter; Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Novato; Sonoma State Hospital; Star of the Sea Church in Sausalito; and the Church in Ignacio.

The DON'T do it yourself book

Do-it-yourself is great when you want to whip up a cake or a new outfit. But your hair is much too precious to experiment with. In hair tinting many elements must be taken into consideration.

The texture of your hair: will tinting coarsen it? What color will complement your complexion? How will tinting affect the health of your hair? Would a one or two process operation be better?

All these important questions can be answered by our licensed hairdressers, who have been trained in coloring and specialize in it.

The color artists in our salon may suggest subtle frosting, tortoise shell highlighting or a complete color change. Or they may honestly advise you to stay with your natural color.

Depend on their unerring eye for color. And because they believe only the finest is best for their customers, they use ROUX FANCI-TONE. Come in for a complimentary consultation today.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Burglar Alarm System Would Cure Crime-Cautious Husband

DEAR HELEN:

My husband uses as an excuse for not going out, going on a vacation, going anywhere, the fact that we might get robbed, and he points to all the news stories in the papers to prove it. This has been going on for 25 years.

Well, after he said it at least 500 times, we finally did get robbed when we went away for a weekend.

So now he says, "I told you so!" I point out that we've been away from home 500 times and got robbed once, which doesn't exactly make him a prophet. But he won't budge from the house from now on.

What can I do? — BETTING ON THE ODDS

DEAR BOTO:

Your husband is like the hypochrondriac who had engraved on his tombstone, "See — I told you I was sick!"

Why don't you buy him a burglar alarm system for his birthday? — H.

(Which reminds me of a story I did last year about my burglar-conscious husband, Bob. Inasmuch as I'm still recuperating from surgery (says the doctor), I'll print it Friday. After all, I owe Bob one for the article he published on "What is a Wife?", which riled up women's libists considerably. — H.)

DEAR HELEN:

I have a great wife, but like lots of men I wondered what freedom would be like. So we had an agreement. I'd move out for six months, get my head back together, learn whether bachelorhood was what I really wanted, while she'd stay at the house with the kids.

Well, I learned you don't swing that much as a bachelor. It's a lonely life, after being married to a wonderful girl and having those kids underfoot. Maybe they bothered me, but I sure missed them.

I went back at the end of the fourth month . . . To find my wife had taken a job and was seeing another man regularly!

She says she thanks me a lot for giving her time to think — that it really wasn't a very good marriage and she has decided she and the kids can do better without me. In fact, she has started divorce proceedings, so she can marry this other jerk. Says the kids are crazy about him.

Helen, that wasn't in the agreement! What gets into women anyway, and how can I put some sense into her brainless head? — T.J.

DEAR T.:

Sorry, fella. "You calls your shot and you takes your chances." I'd suggest you do the wine-dine, woo and roses routine; heavy on the woo. Maybe she's only trying to teach you a lesson — H.

DEAR HELEN:

How dare you stand up for the husband who likes to read girlie-type magazines and go to topless bars! That kind of depraved stuff isn't exactly the same as your metaphorical "not wanting to pick every flower he sees in the park!"

Why didn't you tell her to get a bunch of male nude pictures and start raving about them, also to eye every good-looking man that walks down the street. That would fix him! — FURIOUS AT YOU

DEAR FURIOUS:

What's "depraved" for the gander is "depraved" for the goose. If you disapprove of ogling, why suggest that the wife ogle too? Shame on you! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Speaking of husbands who "look" but don't touch, here's one for you: We went to a party where there was a somewhat overripe female in one of those crocheted fishnet type dresses, very open, very decollete. She was definitely braless. Everything showed.

I asked my husband afterwards what he thought of her and he said, "Personally I prefer salmon in that kind of net." Do you think he is:

1. Getting old?
2. A good liar?
3. An avid fisherman? — HAPPY WIFE

DEAR HAPPY:

Let's settle for Number 3, with a dash of Number 2 added . . . Or maybe the gal just didn't shape up to that kind of bait — H.

Vows Said Saturday In Mill Valley

Mill Valley Methodist Church was the setting for the wedding of Kathleen Diane Bennett and Ronald F. Heidinger of Novato on Saturday evening.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald T. Bennett of Mill Valley, Kathleen chose her sister Jackie Bennett as her maid of honor. The matron of honor was Mrs. James Dennett of Arcata and the best man was James Dennett.

A reception was given after the ceremony at the Mill Valley Recreation Center. The couple will live in Novato on their return from a Lake Tahoe wedding trip.

Extra Care Needed With Crepe Dresses

The crepes are back in fashion, which means some extra care is necessary in wardrobes. Allow plenty of time to press a crepe dress before wearing, advises the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Service.

Use a wool pressing cloth covered with a lightweight cotton cloth that is damp but not wet. It's better to use a minimum of moisture and repeat the careful pressing two or three times.

Modern Packaging

Modern packaging is designed to protect what's inside. Don't buy meat or poultry in torn, otherwise damaged or dirty containers, even if it's on sale, USDA inspectors advise. Contaminated food is no bargain.

Congress Poised For Action On Bills To Protect Public

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Action on major consumer legislation, which went into a decline in 1971, is expected to leap ahead in Congress between now and the election recess next fall.

Foundations have been laid for passage of several important bills; hearings have been held, and, in some cases, affirmative votes have been obtained in one branch.

Advocates of consumer legislation decided last fall not to press for final action on some measures at that time; they felt that prospects would be better in an election year.

THEY BASED their decision on past election results that had been particularly favorable to legislators with strong pro-consumer records. The most recent example of the political clout of consumer advocacy was Henry Howell's election as lieutenant governor of Virginia last fall. Howell built his career and keyed his campaign on support of consumer protection. Running as an independent, he defeated representatives of both the Republican and Democratic Parties.

The main consumer issues expected to see action in Congress involve product safety, class action suits, water pollution, a consumer agency, auto insurance, product warranties, billing procedures and strengthening of the Federal Trade Commission.

Action on a new consumer agency has shifted to the Senate with passage of a bill to that effect in the House. Ralph Nader and pro-consumer Congressmen want the House bill strengthened to give such an agency power to intervene in informal actions of regulatory agencies. The bill limits intervention to formal agency actions.

In the past, the Senate has passed bills stronger than the House measure, so some expansion of the bill's scope is likely. If that occurs, then the fate of the measure will be determined in a House-Senate conference. Now that the Nixon Administration has accepted the House version, Congressional approval of a new independent consumer agency is nearly certain.

Passage of a strong water pollution measure is also likely. The Senate was unanimous in its approval of the bill now pending in the House. But a combination of industry and administration forces has begun to lobby against the bill. Some dilution of the measure may occur in the House.

THE SENATE has already passed a bill which would require warranties to say what they mean; the same measure would give the FTC power to seek temporary injunctions to stop fraudulent and deceptive practices while the cases wind their way through the federal agency and courts. House passage is likely.

Prospects for legislation on class action suits are not as bright. Further hearings are expected.

But there is a strong chance that a comprehensive product safety bill will get through both houses before election, after hearings in the House. Legislation to set up an agency to handle all products not already regulated by other agencies is ready to be reported out of the Senate Commerce Committee.

A MEASURE TO set up a national no-fault auto insurance system is also near the top of the committee's agenda. But objections from lawyers and some segments of the industry and the Nixon Administration may bring a law allowing accident victims to sue for "pain and suffering" but collect automatically for injuries.

Other dark-horse candidates for passage include bills designed to encourage Detroit to produce vehicles more resistant to damage in minor accidents, to protect buyers from unfair billing practeces and to reduce the rising trend of real estate settlement costs by having the lender pay title fees.

The fate of all these measures will depend greatly on how legislators read public attitudes as expressed in letters and other forms of communication.

DEFENDS HIGH FASHION

Paris Designer Blasts 'Ingrates'

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) With designer Yves Saint Laurent downgrading his spring high fashion show, rival Andre Courreges has leveled a blast at the "ingrates" he says are planning to kill high fashion in favor of ready-to-wear.

Courreges came to the defense of high fashion in advance of its annual spring collections opening Jan. 24 during which the influential Saint Laurent will show only 50 models instead of his usual 150 to 200.

AS SAINT Laurent announced last September, he also has barred the general daily press from his Jan. 27 show because, salon sources say, he was unhappy with their sour comments on his World War II look of two seasons ago. Monthly fashion magazines, European store buyers and the designer's private clients still are invited, as Laurent promised last September. His October ready-tow-ear show in contrast had all the publicity and hoopla of a big production.

Confusion over Saint Laurent's new system prompted most Paris fashion writers to mistakenly announce he was quitting high fashion.

POSSIBLY AS a result of the uproar, designers Pierre Cardin and Gerard Pipart of the Nina Ricci salon also are showing small collections of high fashion for spring, as a transitory move. They will then combine high fashion with their ready-to-wear at the big Fren ready-to-wear expositions in April and October when more buyers and press are in Paris, another bow to the growing importance of French ready-to-wear.

Courreges did not name any names, but he attacked the "ingrates, those who have forgotten high fashion, who have been led astray by (financial) interests, those who wish to sde high fashion disappear..."

In an editorial written for a monthly newsletter from the Courreges salon, the designer praised high fashion, demanding, "What other artisan profession can promote a name from Los Angeles to Tokyo? What other industry can influence daily life"

"I would be wrong to be carried away by the pessimists and hypocrites," the designer wrote. "I would be wrong to ignore all the possibilities and resources which high fashion can bring me. I never forget that to its image are grafted the images of Paris and of France."

COURREGES HIMSELF more or less started it all when he became the first to show his ready-to-wear and high fashion at the same time and to devote more of his activities to ready-to-wear. He wrote, "I know a transformation of our way of working is evolving—I proved it. But creativity must continue. It doesn't matter whether high fashion models are understood, liked or worn. They will be, someday."

The union of Paris high fashion designers also sprang to their defense, pointing out that the salons exported $38 million worth of goods and royalties in 1970 compared with ($26 million) in 1967. The union emphasizes that the spring high fashion collections are opening with not one single designer, including Saint Laurent, having given up high fashion.

FASHION DESIGNER Andre Courreges has come to the defense of high fashion at the same time that his rival, Yves St. Laurent, is downgrading his spring high fashion show. Courreges, shown here in a stroll along a Paris street in 1969, has accused "ingrates of planning to kill high style in favor of ready-to-wear clothes.

Some Good Advice In Avoiding Colds

NEW YORK (UPI)—Keep a distance from persons with colds, especially those who cough, sneeze, or shake out a used handkerchief for another blow, the U.S. Public Health Service suggests in a pamphlet on colds.

Paper tissues are best for nose wiping and for covering coughs and sneezes. They should be kept in a paper bag and disposed of. Keep separate glasses and towels used by a family member or co-worker with a cold.

Spending By Teens On The Increase

NEW YORK (UPI)—Teenagers in the 16 through 19 age bracket spend about $16 a week these days, says Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, an organization which surveys youth trends.

Their parents spent about one-fourth this amount when they were teens and had far fewer possessions.

White Burlap Boots

For spring the bootmakers have come up with a beauty in white burlap. This pair of boots has big silver eyelets, natural burlap lacing and an espadrille sole.

Evelyn Roos To Teach Classes In Needlepoint

Classes in needlecraft are being offered by the Petaluma Adult Education Department every Monday and Thursday from 7 to 10:30 p.m. at Petaluma High School and every Tuesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Kenilworth Recreation Center.

In addition to basic knitting and crocheting, the program includes needlepoint, rug making and macrame. Mrs. Evelyn Roos is the instructor.

Registration information is available from the Adult Education Office at the high school.

Blood Factor Flier Will Be Distributed

Mothers' March volunteers throughout Marin County will hand out a leaflet titled, "How Do You Score on Rh Blood Factor?", during the annual March of Dimes appeal Saturday through Monday, according to the Mothers' March Chairman, Mrs. Harry B. Shields.

The quiz contains a score card describing the possible situations relating to Rh factor; if the wife has Rh positive blood or if the husband has Rh negative blood, there is no cause for concern; however, if the wife is Rh negative and hdr husband is Rh positive, they need to know that there is a vaccine to prevent Rh disease from affecting their children, Mrs. Shields said.

Keep Well Cleaned

Keep hair grooming accessories as clean as your hair. Don't forget to include brushes and combs in your handbag when you're washing accessories. Dunk curlers, clips and hairpins in a basin of suds from time to time. Rinse well and dry.

Young Musicians' Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Bell Vaning of San Rafael announce the engagement of their daughter, Stephanie Eden Vaning, to Richard James Ratliff Jr. of Stockton.

Eden, as the future bride is known, is the sister of Walker S. Vaning of San Rafael. She was graduated from San Rafael High School and has a degree in music from the University of the Pacific, where she was affiliated with Phi Kappa Lambda, Mortar Board and Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary music fraternity.

The future bride, a violinist, is working toward a master's degree at Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y. She is concertmistress of the Eastman Philharmonia and will be soloist with the Rochester Philharmonic next month.

The future bridegroom, who has appeared with Stephanie in many duo-concerts in Northern California and New York, is the son of the senior Richard J. Ratliffs of Stockton. Susan Carol Ratliff is his sister. He was graduated from Lincoln High School in Stockton and University of the Pacific and studied at Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and Eastman School of Music. In March he will be soloist with the Stockton Symphony.

A Bright, Snappy Look For Spring

Pat Sandler's spring, 1972, is bright and snappy. He ensembles his costumes in vibrant red jersey, gayly colored plaids, and smashing stripes over beautifully coordinated layered dresses. One-piece daytime dresses are put together with equal verve, using various combinations of sweaters, skirts and shirts, to create a harmonious and very organized series of solids and patterns.

One Big Ring

NEW YORK (UPI)—A cultured peal ring can be just as large, and just as dramatic as you like, according to the latest fashion. The era of wearing multitudes of tiny rings is ending, according to jewelry forecasts for spring.

The Simpson Look

The majority of the silhouettes in Adele Simpson's spring collection are slender, slightly fitted and flared at the hem. This outline is adapted to coat costumes, to suits with various jacket lengths.

More Tailored Look In Boys' Clothing

Watch for the country-city effect in boys' clothing for fall of '72. The look, says the Boys' and Young Men's Apparel Manufacturing Association, is handsome, not tricky; more tailored. The two-button, singlebreasted suit is shaped but not extreme, still has wide lapels. The choice of accessories gives it either the country or the city look. Many will have matching vests.

RUSSIANS PICKY

2 Million Washers For Sale; No Sale

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MOSCOW — Door-to-door salesmen?

Such a capitalist institution is not practiced in this stronghold of Marxism, but with the consumer market glutted with unwanted products, a suggestion now comes to send salesmen out to ring doorbells and pay them on a commission basis to peddle the slow-moving wares.

This unorthodox idea is unlikely to be realized. But it points up a problem of serious and growing magnitude for Soviet planners: how to dovetail supply and demand and curtail production of old-fashioned goods, which the more discriminating Russian buyer today stuffily rejects. In this case — washing machines.

It seems there now are almost two million of them on the market that are not selling. Not because the demand for washing machines is fully met — only every second Soviet family has such an appliance — but because they are old models. The housewife, in short, is in rebellion.

According to a candid report in the newspaper Soviet Trade, some 20 factories are turning out 500,000 units a year of a 20-year model. This means about 85 per cent of all washing machines produced in thecountry are made of the one-drum, hand-wringer type.

Only one model has been given a quality rating, the report adds. Semi-automatic machines comprise only a small part of total production and not a single plant is yet manufacturing automatic unios.

Why this lamentable state of affairs? The report cites the conflict of interests that arises between retaliiers and producers in a system of planning geared to quantity rather than quality of output:

"For years we asked manufacturers to produce improved models," the chief salesman of the Moscow Electrical Equipment Trade Trust is quoted as saying. "They did not listen to us. In 1971, for instance, we asked for only 5,300 machines with hand wringers and got 30,000."

The factory director, for his part, counters:

"Do we have to fulfill the state plan? Absolutly! Just as the trade people have to meet a contract. Once the machines are ordered and the facotry gets its plan, you have to make the products."

A basic problem is that it is still more profitable for enterprises to turn out old products. The present system of price fixing does not provide enough incentive to develop new products, which require heavy investment.

Moreover, factories that do develop new items often run into other difficulties. One Moscow plant, for instance, has put out a semiautomatic washer that it fittingly calls Eureka. But Eureka requires a lot of power, and Soviet apartments cannot bear the electrical load without special lines.

Unfortunately for the regime, not only washing machines are clogging warehouses. Inventories of many other products — television sets, sewing machines, shoes, women's apparel — also are piling up as Russians now pick and choose what they buy.

Recognizing that there is no economic lever that forces manufacturers to produce for the market, authorities have tried to apply penalties against factories that turn out unsalable products.

But bonuses paid to factories for over-fulfilling plan targets for gross output more than compensate for these weak sanctions. And, as a result, retailers are left holding the bag.

The tale of the washing machines is "instructive," said the Soviet Trade report. Although the Soviet press has been airing this problem with growing frequency of late, as yet there have been no firm proposals on how to change the planning system so that manufacturers are responsive to consumer wishes.

It is doubtful that even the most enterprising Soviet door-to-door salesmen could get rid of two million washing machines.

WORD-A-DAY

Congestion Stays In Span Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The experimental priority lanes on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge for buses and car pools has failed to make a measurable dent in traffic congestion, the legislature was told yesterday.

The Department of Public Works said in a report that during the first two weeks of the experiment last month car pools increased but that patronage on AC Transit buses increased only slightly.

During the peak commute period in the morning, westbound bus and car pool priority lanes have been installed on a trial basis through the toll plaza area. The aim is to reduce air pollution, traffic congestion and speed workers to the job.

Cars containing three or more persons are permitted to use the bridge toll-free while AC Transit buses whisk through the toll gates and are billed for tolls at the end of the month.

During the initial two weeks, the report said, car pools using the exclusive lane increased from 1,262 to 2,000 "yet no measurable decrease in congestion has occurred."

A survey of 25 per cent of the AC Transit routes indicated that bus "patronage had not been affected by the additional car pools with patronage of 5,837 the first day and 5,991 two weeks later."

"People are reluctant to change their established travel modes when they feel any travel alternative is experimental," the report observed.

Marinwood CSD To Appeal Condominium

The Marinwood Community Services District board has agreed to appeal Marin County Planning Commission approval of a 109-unit condominium development to the board of supervisors.

The district board previously had given conditional approval to the development, proposed by Kaiser Aetna Co. of Oakland, but objected Monday night to terms of the planning commission's approval, which came yesterday.

The development is proposed for 18 acres at Las Gallinas Avenue and Miller Creek Road.

Genevieve T. Bolding, district board secretary, said the board objected to the commission's failure to require the developer to dedicate development streets to the county and to open proposed tennis courts to the public.

Both of the requirements had been agreed to by Kaiser Aetna, Mrs. Bolding said, but she said the commission did not want to accept the streets because the county would have to maintain them.

The services district wants them dedicated so that parking can be controlled and passage for emergency vehicles ensured.

The board Monday night also agreed to oppose plans for annexation to San Rafael of a parcel south of Lucas Valley Road and east of Highway 101, where a computer center is planned.

Mrs. Bolding said the parcel, to be developed by Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., runs to the north side of Lucas Valley Road. The services district boundary runs to the south side of the road, and the section of the road adjacent to the proposed annexation would be removed from the services district if annexation is approved.

The annexation proposal will be considered by the county Local Agency Formation Commission, Feb. 9, she said.

The Marinwood Community Services District board also:

FLOOR — Awarded a $3,280 contract for parquet flooring for the community center to the lowest of three bidders, Axel Isackson Hardwood Floor Co. of San Francisco.

COMMISSIONER — Appointed Emily Dvorin of 742 Appleberry Drive to a one-year seat on the park and recreation commission. Applications are being accepted for alternate's seats and the park and recreation and fire commissions, Mrs. Bolding said.

BUDGET — Referred a $117,455 proposed fire department budget to the Upper Lucas Valley Homeowners Association for its comments. The association contracts with the services district for fire protection.

EMPLOYEE — Hired Ardith Arnold of 224 Blackstone Drive as an assistant tiny tot program instructor at $2 an hour for 10 hours a week.

PAVING — Agreed to contract with the county for $350 to have new sealing put on the community center parking lot.

Treatment Of Mental Patients Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A major state employee organization charged yesterday that thousands of mental patients "have been released from state hospitals without adequate protection or treatment."

In an 18-page report, the California State Employees Association called on the Legislature to block what it said were plans to shut down Mendocino, Metropolitan, Patton and Stockton state hospitals.

It demanded a legislative investigation into community mental health programs financed by state funds under the 1969 Lanterman-Petris-Short Act.

The law shifts care and treatment of the mentally ill and retarded from state hospitals to local community centers and pays most of the costs.

The CSEA charged that the "state has distorted the humanitarian aims of the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act and use that law as an excuse to act without adequate planning, without education of either the community or the patient, and without provisions for alternative care."

Walter Taylor, CSEA general manager, said that the "tragic consequences" of the law have been to "take thousands of mentally ill patients out of state hospitals and scatter them amoung counties unequipped to provide adequate care."

"In far too many cases," he said, "these patients end up in transient hotels, small board and care homes or in prison. Their illnesses are not being treated. County and private facilities just are not equipped to handle the flood of patients being released by the state."

The organization said there will be a net increase of $9.7 million in cost of state-financed mental health care during the next fiscal year, despite what it said were plans to close four hospitals—two this year and two more within 36 months.

The good taste of chicken depends on freshness. The fresher the chicken, the better the chicken. And freshness is what makes the difference between Foster Farms fryers and most other chickens.

We're local. Here in the San Joaquin Valley. You see, a lot of other poultry comes from out of state. It takes four, maybe five days to get to your store.

And every day a bird is on the road, it loses a bit more of its fresh flavor.

We start sending our chicken your way hours before sunrise. So it's waiting for you at the store when you do your shopping.

Tam Tips Redwood In Overtime, 66-63

Garner Scores 33 Points

By LEW CODDINGTON

Dead and all but buried, the Tamalpais High School Indians kicked open the coffin door and attacked their executioners yesterday evening, defeating Redwood High in overtime, 66-63, at Redwood.

The victory kept the Indians tied with San Rafael for the Marin County Athletic League basketball lead at 4-0, and reduced pre-season favorite Redwood to 2-2 in the league, tied for third.

"God, it was beautiful," said emotional Tam coach Bernie Schneider, whose teams had lost seven straight to Redwood over almost four years.

"I can't remember ever being so proud. They came back in spite of everything."

The Indians trailed late in the third quarter, 44-31, and were in dire foul trouble, but rallied to tie the game in regulation at 57-57.

Will Garner scored 33 points, including two free throws with 12 seconds left in the fourth quarter to tie it. Five of his points came in overtime, the most important being a three-point play with 1:11 left to give Tam an insurmountable 64-61 lead. Clifford Hall, who scored the first two points of the overtime with a jump shot, made the last two on a pair of free throws.

Redwood's Steve McGee scored 32 points, hitting short hooks and jumpers and drawing fouls like a magnet. Three different men tried to guard him, and committed 10 fouls.

"We used our 'catchup offense' after getting behind," said Schneider. "We had three guards in there, alternating Hall, John Johnson, Pat Locey and David Jones. The idea was to get some speed for the press, to force turnovers and to improve our own ball-handling."

Garner scored five of Tam's first seven points in the comeback, then watched as Jared McFerrin put on a seven-point burst. McFerrin's streak saved a possible Tam collapse, when the Indians were hit with a personal and a technical foul after closing to within four points.

Redwood's Mike Connor hit a pair of free throws with 1:13 left to put the Giants ahead 57-54, but Hall countered with a free throw at 1:07. Redwood tried to hang onto the ball, but following a missed foul shot, McFerrin snatched a rebound and Tam brought it down to set up Garner's tying free throws.

"Our free-throw shooting hurt us again," said Redwood coach Dick Hart. The Giants made 21 of 36 for 58 per cent, compared to Tam's 18 of 23 for 78 per cent.

Tam made 24 of 51 shots from the floor, 47 per cent, not a whole lot better than Redwood's 23 of 57 for 44 per cent.

McGee got 18 rebounds and Garner 12. Tim Hennessy and Rich Hagler scored 10 each for Redwood, while McFerrin had 10 for Tam.

The score was tied at halftime, 23-23, but Redwood played aggressively in the third quarter behind McGee's leadership, outscoring Tam 21-8 until the Indians reversed things.

"You can't go around losing 13-point leads," said Hart. "Anytime you do that, you deserve to lose."

Tamalpais	11	12	16	18	9	— 66
Redwood	8	15	24	10	6	— 63

Tamalpais — Garner 11-11-33, Dickens 0-1-1, McFerrin 4-2-10, Dinehart 2-0-4, Johnson 2-0-4, Locey 3-0-6, Hall 2-4-8. Totals: 24-18-66.

Redwood — McGee 12-8-32, Hennessy 2-6-10, Farb 1-0-2, Connor 2-5-9, Hagler 4-2-10. Totals: 21-21-63.

THE LINEUP — Tamalpais and Redwood High School basketball players got into line trying to get the ball during yesterday's game. Redwood's Tim Hennessy (crouching) and Tam's Mike Dinehart (42) had their hands on it, and Redwood's Rich Hagler (25) wanted it. Tam won, 66-63, in overtime.

WILLSEY RESIGNS

Cal In Market For Grid Coach

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Ray Willsey, head football coach at the University of California who drew fire for not sidelining his star halfback to avoid NCAA suspension, resigned Tuesday after eight years as the Bears' mentor.

Willsey, 40, had no comment upon tendering his resignation. No successor was named immediately.

UC Chancellor Albert H. Bowker, accepting the resignation, praised the rugged-looking coach, noting he "has coached at Berkeley during, perhaps, its most difficult years and has done his utmost to serve the university well. We wish the best in his future endeavors."

Willsey joined Cal as head coach in 1964 and compiled a 40-42-1 record in eight seasons, bringing the Bears some measure of respect after years of disappointing seasons.

Noted as a top-flight defensive coach, Willsey gave Cal five straight winning seasons from 1967 through 1971 and was named Northern California Coach of the Year in 1968.

Willsey's downfall was apparently triggered by his decision to play junior running back Isaac Curtis this past season even though the NCAA had declared him inelgible for not taking the academic predictability test.

The NCAA placed Cal on suspension, with the school forfeiting all chances for postseason titles in all NCAA sports. Observers were generally sympathetic with Willsey's face-saving decision to keep playing Curtis, but felt he lost points with school administrators for doing so.

Willsey had also served as acting athletic director since Paul Brechler resigned last fall. Bowker said a new athletic director and head football coach would be named shortly.

Leading candidate for the coaching job was thought to be Mike White, currently assistant coach at Stanford. White, 35, was highly admired by John Ralston, the Stafnord coach named to head the Denver Broncos two weeks ago.

Ralston has recommended White for the head coaching job at Stanford along with two other men, but Stanford officials have announced no decision and White, a Cal graduate who has expressed an ambition in the past of returning as head coach of his alma mater, may wind up across the Bay at Berkeley.

In line for the athletic director's job is Dave Maggard, 32, head track coach at Cal for the past two years.

Willsey played two years of varsity football as a defensive back and quarterback for the Bears before graduating in 1953.

He played two years with Edmonton in the Canadian League before joining Darrel Royal, then coach at the University of Washington, as an assistant in 1956.

After following Royal to Texas, Willsey served four years as an assistant coach in the NFL beginning in 1960 with the St. Louis Cardinals and then the Washington Redskins.

Berra, Wynn, Koufax Make Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sandy Koufax, Yogi Berra and Early Wynn all were named to the Hall of Fame today in the first multiple election by the Baseball Writers Association of America since 1962.

In the heaviest voting in the 40-year history of the balloting by the writers, all three electees received better than 300 votes and Koufax, with 344, received the highest number of votes ever. Koufax, 36, is the youngest player ever elected to the Hall of Fame.

Berra received 339 votes and Wynn totaled 301. A record total of 396 ballots were cast by veteran members of the BBWAA with 297, or 75 per cent, needed for election.

Ralph Kiner finished fourth with 235 votes, followed by Gil Hodges with 161 and Johnny Mize with 157.

Koufax, who becomes only the fifth player in baseball history to make the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility, was the dominant pitcher in the game from 1963-66. Although he achieved greatness in only four of his 12 big league seasons with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, his achievements during that four-year span are unequalled.

The fast-balling lefthander led the National League in earned run average a record five consecutive seasons from 1962-66 with marks of 2.54, 1.88, 1.74, 2.04 and 1.73. During those years he compiled a record of 111-34, struck out over 300 batters in three different seasons and pitched a record four no-hitters.

He was the recipient of the Cy Young Award as the game's outstanding pitcher on three occasions and in 1963 also won the NL's most valuable player award.

An arthritic elbow forced him into an early relirement after the 1966 season at 31.

Berra, now a coach with the New York Mets, was recognized as the greatest catcher in the American League during his 18 years with the New York Yankees.

A slick receiver and renowned clutch hitter, Berra belted 358 career homers, a record for catchers, and compiled a .285 lifetime batting average. He was a key figure in the Yankees winning 14 pennants from 1947-62 and in three of those years, 1951-54-55, Yogi was selected as the AL's most valuable player.

Berra owns 10 World Series records among his list of achievements.

Wynn's career spanned four decades from 1939 to 1963 and during that time he compiled a record of 300 victories and 244 losses. He pitched nine seasons with the Washington Senators, 10 with the Cleveland Indians and five with the Chicago White Sox, winning 20 or more games in a season five times.

A burly righthander, Wynn won the Cy Young Award in 1959 at the age of 39, and he is the last pitcher to reach the coveted 300-victory circle. His 23 years as a pitcher is a major league record.

Prep Water Polo Protest Loses

Terra Linda High School won a direct victory in the swimming pool and an indirect victory in the committee rooms yesterday to move back into a tie for the Marin County Athletic League water polo lead with San Rafael.

The Trojans defeated a stubborn Drake team, 7-2, to elevate their league record to 9-2. In other MCAL action, Novato edged San Marin, 12-10, and Redwood defeated Tamalpais, 10-5.

A committee appointed by the lea gue's board of manager (principals), voted not to allow San Rafael's protest of its 14-8 loss to Novato Dec. 14, due to what MCAL commissioner George Corson called "insufficient evidence of violation." Had it been allowed, San Rafael would have had a 9-1 league record and possibly a chance to play Novato again and erase the defeat.

The league season will conclude Friday, with Tamalpais at Terra Linda, Novato at San Rafael and Drake at Redwood. San Marin will be idle. Should San Rafael and Terra Linda finish the season tied for the title, they will be co-champions, and there will be no playoff.

"Drake was up for the game and did a real fine job," said Terra Linda oach Chuck Metz after his voctory. "We beat them by playing tight defense, giving them just one goal from the field."

Fred Turkheimer and Jon Fern scored twice each for the Trojans.

Kevin (Corky) Hull scored three goals and goalie Andy Stone had a shutout for three periods as Redwood built up a 10-2 lead on Tam and coasted in.

The standings:

San Rafael 9-2, Terra Linda 9-2, Novato 7-4, Redwood 7-4, San Marin 4-8, Tamalpais 3-8, Drake 0-11.

San Rafael Whips San Marin, 80-51

By PAUL CANE

The San Rafael High School zone defense kept San Marin High away from the basket, away from the key, and off the scoreboard for most of last night as the Bulldogs thoroughly buffaloed the hapless Mustangs, 80-51, in San Rafael.

Denied access to the inside, San Marin opted for longer shots, and these the Mustangs hit to the pathetic tune of 32 per cent, to help keep San Rafael tied for the Marin County Athletic League basketball lead with a 4-0 mark.

"We use that zone quite well," coach Mike Diaz modestly admitted. "We plan to stick with it."

San Rafael, on the other hand, displayed a variety of shots —fast-breaking, driving and setting up for outsiders at will, until Diaz mercifully substituted.

Not being able to get to the basket, the Mustangs consequently also took a beating in the rebound statistics, 40-21. Dan Zitek and I-J Prep-of-the-Week Donnie Canfield headed the jumping parade, snatching seven each.

Canfield, in approximately two full quarters of action, tallied 15 points to top Bulldog scorers, although Bill and Wayne Lechner and George Swift also posted double-figure totals.

Canfield's outside jumpers complemented the Lechner Bros. layups and tip-ins, with San Rafael registering 55 per cent from the floor.

Hoza Wright came as close to anyone to being consistent for San Marin (0-4), collecting 15 points, although nine of these were from the free throw line.

All members of the Bulldog varsity played, and ten of them scored.

"We think we've got a pretty good shot at the title," Diaz said.

Novato Cagers Top Terra Linda, 56-45

Joe Powell hit four field goals in the fourth quarter, including two crucial 15-foot jump shots with about two minutes left, to spark a rally that carried Novato High School past Terra Linda last night, 56-45.

The triumph lifted Novato into a three-way tie for third place in the Marin County Athletic League basketball standings with a 2-2 record.

The Hornets trailed going into the last period, 36-35, but opened up a lead and forced Terra Linda to foul near the end. "Willie Barnes did a good job on the boards for us and Joe Robinson hit a couple of important shots," said coach Jim Caranica. "Tom Conklin and Howie High set up our offense."

Novato's Marty Moroski led all scores with 17 points before fouling out with four minutes left. "The guys who were left in there didn't fold," said Caranica.

Powell scored 14 points and Moroski had nine. Mark Lowey led Terra Linda with 12.

Parker Signs With Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Star first baseman Wes Parker and four rookies have reached terms with the Los Angeles Dodgers for the 1972 season, club vice president Al Campanis announced today.

Parker had a disappointing season at the plate in 1971 when he batted .274 but his fielding continued flawless a d he captured his fifth consecutive Golden Glove Award as the top fielding first baseman in the National League. The previous year Parker had his best major league season as a hitter with a .319 average.

Also returning signed contracts were catcher Terry McDermott and pitchers Eddie Solomon, Ted Gilje and Al Dawson. All were ranked as top prospects in the Dodgers organization and McDermott was the club's No. 1 draft selection in 1969. He batted .271 for Albuquerque last season.

West's Jump Shot Wins All-Star Game

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — How do you top a 33-game win streak?

Jerry West came as close as you can in the All-Star game Tuesday night.

With two seconds left and New York's Walt Frazier hounding him, the Los Angeles Lakers' "Mr. Clutch" dropped in a 20-foot jump shot from the top of the key.

That amounted to a 112-110 victory for the West over the East in the National Basketball Association's 22nd annual All-Star game and the Laker superstar was voted the contest's most valuable player.

West, the NBA's scoring champion two seasons ago, made 7 of his 13 points in the exciting final period. Playing 27 minutes, he made six of nine field goal attempts, assisted on five other baskets and grabbed six rebounds.

The 12-year pro was at his best on defense, however, making eight steals.

"It's an incredible thrill to win this honor in front of the home fans," said West after being presented the MVP award for the first time in his illustrious career. "We didn't play good defense in the first half but I knew we could come back in the second half."

West said the last shot was supposed to be taken by the Milwaukee Bucks' Oscar Robertson when his club took the ball out with nine seconds left.

"But time was running out so I had to do it," he offered.

Bill Sharman, the West coach whose Lakers set a league record 33 consecutive triumphs in rolling up a 41-5 first half record, was in high humor after West's late heroics.

"Just say I knew we had it all the way," joked Sharman, who was the game's MVP in 1955. "There was never a doubt. Seriously, I'm glad Jerry finally won the award."

Down by 10 points at halftime, the West outscored the East 33-20 in the third quarter to go in front 87-84. With 2:56 left, the Western conference club was ahead 10596.

Boston's twin torpedoes — John Havlicek and Dave Cowens—nearly sent the game before a forum throng of 17,214 into overtime.

With 43 seconds left, Havlicek connected on an 18-foot jump shot from the left side. With 11 seconds to go after Golden State's Cazzie Russell failed to hit for the West with 19 seconds on the clock, Cowens drilled a 10-foot jumper from the right side.

Frazier, who dogged West after the ball was brought in, said:

"I had very good position on Jerry on that last shot but what can you do. This guy is just fantastic."

The eastern coach, Tom Heinsohn of Boston, agreed, saying:

"What can you do when a guy like Frazier has a hand in his face and he's still able to make the shot."

Connie Hawkins of Phoenix also had 13 points for the West, while Milwaukee's Kareem Jabbar, sitting out the entire last quarter, finished with 12 points and seven rebounds.

In the All-Star MVP balloting, West had 23 votes to 21 for Hawkins and 13 for Cowens.

Drake Quint Outshoots Marin 'Cats

In a free-throw shooting competition cleverly disguised as a basketball game yesterday, Drake High School made 14 of 18 shots from the line in the fourth quarter to fend off Marin Catholic, 68-60.

The victory left the visiting Pirates tied for third in the Marin County Athletic League basketball race with a 2-2 record.

Tom Carlisle scored 20 points for Drake, cancelling out a 20-point effort by the Wildcats' Tim Stone. Ten of Carlisle's points came fom the line, which was emblematic of the struggle.

Marin Catholic committed 27 personal fouls, first unintentionally, later deliberately trying to erase the narrow lead that Drake carried throughout. The Pirates made 28 of 41 free throws, however.

Drake, which always seems to get more rebounds than its meager height entitles it to, almost neutralized the bigger Wildcats on the boards, snatching 25 to Marin Catholic's 27.

Both teams shot well from the floor, Drake hitting 20 of 50 for 40 per cent, Marin Catholic 23 of 50 for 46 per cent. Dave Wilkinson added 11 points and Greg Shaw 10 for Drake, while the Wildcats' Mickey Hurley had 12 and Dan Mahoney 10.

Jim Sullivan of Marin Catholic and Jit Singh of Drake, who usually start, each missed the game because of the flu.

Drake, Redwood J.V. Teams Win, Remain Unbeaten

Drake and Redwood high schools each won junior varsity basketball games yesterday to remain tied for the unofficial Marin County Athletic League lead with 4-0 records.

Drake defeated Marin Catholic, 58-42, as Don Asay scored 16 points, while Redwood overwhelmed Tamalpais, 58-30, behind Dave Payne's 17.

Rich Mullin scored 17 and Bob Buckley 15 to lead Terra Linda past Novato, 56-41. Guy Perry's 15-point showing helped San Rafael thrash San Marin, 54-24.

After Juan And Sam It's A Question Mark

(Second of series)

Charlie Fox talks ecstatically about San McDowell, towering lefthander the Giants acquired from Cleveland in a winter trade for Gaylord Perry. Fox hated to part with Perry for whom he has nothing but admiration as "one of baseball's greatest competitors."

It was a trade dictated by the need of the Giants for a strong starting southpaw capable of neutralizing dangerous left-handed bats in National League lineups, particularly those of the Pirates, Cubs and Dodgers.

FOX IS BRINGING McDowell with him to Candlestick Park next Tuesday when the manager of the Giants will hold his annual pre-spring meeting with press, radio and TV.

Occasionally, Fox even dreams of McDowell being a 30-game winner in the 6-5 southpaw's first season in the National League. Alvin Dark always said McDowell was capable of winning 30 in the American League because of his overpowering fast ball, fine curve and great changeup. McDowell and Dark didn't get along too well at Cleveland.

McDowell and Fox are fast friends. McDowell told Fox that he would report Feb. 18 at Casa Grande in "better shape than any other pitcher." He's already trimmed 10 pounds off the 240 he weighed at the end of last season.

"HE BET ME a month's wages he'll come in at 220," said Fox. "I told him to make it 215."

Then Fox, in a dreamy smile, said: "Just think of McDowell winning 30 and Juan Marichal doing the same. Wouldn't that be something?"

Fox came back to earth when asked who would be his No. 3 and No. 4 starters this year. He frowned. It was obvious that starting pitchers after Marichal and McDowell was a matter of concern.

"That's the reason why I'm opening camp a week ahead of time this year for our pitchers," said Fox.

SOUTHPAW JOHN Cumberland finished the season as the No. 3 starter and did a commendable job after half a season of bullpen duty. He still is the logical No. 3 man.

Don Carrithers, called up from Phoenix after Frank Reberger and Rich Robertson were sent down, finished the 1971 campaign in the No. 4 spot. Carrithers did a good job with a 5-3 record for a rookie under pennant pressure.

Steve Stone, rookie righthander, looked like he would be the No. 3 sensation early last season but then his pitches began to get invitingly high for batters.

Southpaw Ron Bryant was a whiz during the first half of 1971 but developed second half arm trouble that sent his record into a 7-10 skid.

ALL OF THE above mentioned gentlemen will be back this spring. So, too, will Jim Willoughby and Skip Pitlock. And Mike McCormick, unconditionally released last summer by Kansas City, intends to make another try with the Giants.

As for the 1972 Giant bullpen it will be Jerry Johnson, Jim Barr and Don McMahon who is scheduled for double duty this year as pitching coach.

LACK OF INTEREST AT MARIN

Small Wrestling Turnout

By RON LENT

"Many kids are simply not interested in combat sports like wrestling anymore.

"Lots of college students coming out of Marin County high schools have had enough of it; they don't want anymore.

"Wrestling is such a demanding sport that many students simply don't have the time for it. They've got to support themselves. They've got to study; they've got to pay for their cars."

These are the key problems plaguing the College of Marin wrestling program, according to Tar coach Jim McGowan.

McGowan also contends that "it is quite a big jump from high school to college wrestling.

"The prospective wrestler here has so much to learn in such a short (two-year) time. This makes it really tough. But if the kid survives the first year, he'll generally come back the next and do well."

This, then, is the situation confronting McGowan as he molds his undermanned squad. The Tars, with two victories in six starts, have quality wrestlers. "We just don't have enough of them to go around," the mentor said.

To alleviate this difficulty, McGowan proposed that wrestling be taken up in the elementary schools. "I know," he commented, "that a lot of school officials are hesitant to do so, because of the injury factor, but injuries have been cut down. We have good supervision and safe mats to minimize the amount of injuries."

McGowan believes that "learning the basics of wrestling at an early age helps wrestlers later. They are that much further advanced when they come here."

To augment his case, he points out that several of his top wrestlers are from "areas outside of California where they learned wrestling in these earlier years."

For example, McGowan cited Joe Lehman from Wisconsin. "Lehman is one of our best. He is an ex-Marine who wrestles in the 142-pound group. He really works hard at it.

"In Wisconsin, wrestling is pretty big in winter. Around here (in Marin) there is so much to do and it isn't very cold, but in Wisconsin, the weather keeps people indoors, and they don't have such a wide variety of athletic choices to make. So they go to the local gyms and watch wrestling. There is much interest there."

Although the cold areas of the midwest and east foster wrestling's appeal as a spectator sport, this enjoyment is, by no means, regional.

Colorado has supplied Marin's number one 118-pound performer, Tom Measles, and Terra Linda High has chipped in several top notch wrestlers like Bert Sideroff, 150 pounds, and Jeff Grant, 142.

"Sideroff is a very promising freshman, and Grant is one of our two best performers," McGowan enthused.

Mark Martini, a 167-pounder, is another Terra Linda High product who has helped the team. "He has competed at 157 pounds, but we'll be using him in the 167-pound class.

Not to be outdone by Terra Linda, Novato High has donated two Marin wrestlers, namely heavyweight Ron Budde, a linebacker on the Tar football team, and Dennis Miller. "Miller didn't wrestle for us last year, but he is holding his own as a sophomore," McGowan says.

Illness has hurt the performance of 158-pound Paul Wolfe. "He was third in the Camino Norte Conference last year," McGowan states, "but started slowly this time. He is looking a lot better now."

Marin's small but enthusiastic squad is rounded out by 35-year-old Dave Seyler, 190. McGowan asserts, "he is my age, which is not a great handicap in wrestling. In fact, he does a good job. He has never wrestled before, but he likes the competition."

Apparently, so does the coach, because McGowan still participates in AAU matches "in the off season, just to keep in shape."

Light Heavyweight Showdown On Tap

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—A light heavyweight championship showdown, as well as an organitional showdown, has been set for March 9 when champions Vicente Rondon of Venezuela and Bob Foster of the United States meet at Miami Beach Conventional Hall.

Foster's manager, Lou Viscuis of Tampa, Fla., and Rondon's manager, Felix "Tuto" Zabala, signed the contract for the championship fight Tuesday, calling for a $50,000 guarantee for each fighter.

Foster, now in Albuquerque, N.M., is expected to begin training in Tampa at the end of the month. Rondon, in Caracas, will go to Puerto Rico at the end of this week.

Rondon and Foster have never met, although the question of who is better was batted back and forth between Viscusi and Zabala, just as among other fight fans. Neither fighter was at the signing for the event promoted by Mel Ziegler of Allied Sports Inc., and Ron Gorton.

Foster, 32, had 44 victories with five losses—all as a heavyweight—and is the National Boxing Associations (NBA) light-heavyweight champ. His World Boxing Association (WBA) crown was taken from him last year for failing to defend it.

Rondon defeated Jimmy Dupree Feb. 27, 1971, for the WBA crown, and has defended it successfully twice, the last time here Oct. 26, 1971 with a TKO over Gomeo Brennan.

Bruins' Goaltending Is 'Secret' Weapon

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Boston Bruins have so many obvious weapons that it's sometimes forgotten that they also have a "secret" one: goaltending.

Gerry Cheevers and Ed Johnston, the most underpublicized stars of the Bruins,have moved into second place in the race for the Vezina Trophy, which goes annually to the team allowing the fewest goals during the National Hockey League season.

The Bruins' duo took over second place in the race, behind only the Chicago Black Hawks' Tony Esposito and Gary Smith Tuesday night when Cheevers blanket the St. Louis Blues, 2-0. The Bruins have lost only two of their last 30 games and have opened up a four-point first-place lead over the New York Rangers in the East Division.

Cheevers, undefeated in 14 consecutive games, turned aside 25 shots as the Bruins snapped the Blues' five-game winning streak.

Don Marcotte scored the Bruins' first goal at 10:37 of the first period and Phil Esposito scored the second at 12:48 of the third period.

Class B Basketball

Redwood High School's Class B basketball team defeated Terra Linda yesterday, 48-41, as Steve Spelman scored 19 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Eric Axness added another 15 points. Tamalpais defeated San Rafael in overtime, 55-54.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

'Inchoate Exigency,' Or, 'Be Prepared'

Reading an old text on yachting skills written by a Bostonian about 80 years ago, I ran across the expression "inchoate exigency."

The writer said it was something one should always be anticipating, and should have a clear cut plan of action against.

An inchoate exigency — freely translated — is a disaster that's about to happen, an accident-on-the-verge. Naturally, in boating one should always anticipate emergencies, and should always have a plan of action. So what has changed in 80 years?

The archaic expression flashed into my mind one day last summer when I watched a small boat back out of a dock space into a channel. The throttle linkage jammed and the boat backed up too fast. It was headed for a sleek $65,000 motor yacht just passing. The onlookers gasped. Just a fraction of a second before the impact the skipper of the small craft managed to get it in forward gear and the boat shot ahead. Before the engine could be stopped it crashed into a dock wall.

The damage was substantial — about $200, but think of the cost of ramming a $65,000 palatial yacht.

So that's the modern version of the inchoate exigency —the condition of being on the brink of catastrophe. Thinking about it bothers quite a few boaters, as the questions we get indicate:

Q. Our lake becomes quite violent in high winds. What's the right thing to do if caught out on it under such conditions?

A. Keep the bow into the wind and waves, and go very slowly. Stay low in the boat, with life jackets on. If you can get to shelter this way, fine, otherwise wait out the storm.

Q. I was swamped and rescued by a police boat. The officers told me I should never have let the boat broach. Exactly what does that mean?

A. Back in the days of sailing ships the expression was "broach to," and meant to allow the ship to turn broadside to wind and waves . . . with inevitable calamitous consequences. The old high sailing ships frequently just flipped over. It still means the same thing, mostly the result of trying to turn in the face of high winds.

Q. Will my 27-foot cruiser sink if it's holed? What do I do if I hit a rock?

A. The weight of the engines and other heavy gear on most cruisers will pull them down. When they are full of water they'll sink. So if you run up on a rock, try to assess the damage quickly. If you back off successfully you may sink. Stuck on a rock you may wreck a boat but save your life.

Q. You keep preaching: if swamped, stay with the boat. I'm a good swimmer, why should I?

A. Statistics say you should. They indicate that the poor swimmer who hangs on to the boat is almost always rescued, but the good swimmer who strikes out for shore is frequently drowned.

Q. I didn't realize boats "skid" sideways as much as they do on a turn. I hit another boat. What should I have done?

A. There is always an instant in a circumstance such as this when you realize you are going to hit. Kill the motor dead at that moment. Outboard boats stop very fast, and you may not hit. If you do, at least you hit at lower speed and damage is less.

Q. I followed your advice about rigging up a plastic pail as a sea anchor in case of a storm. Do I put it over the bow or the stern?

A. The bow usually, the stern seldom. The whole idea is to keep the bow into the wind and waves. It's the sharp front end of a boat that's designed to take the brunt of violence and shed the water. The back end is usually the vulnerable area.

Q. I was passing between two very large craft, and the turbulence where the two wakes met flipped my 12-foot boat over . . .?

A. This is an incipient emergency one must anticipate well ahead of time. One large wake can be dangerous to a very small boat, but two can be fatal. When two craft are traveling side by side, the point where the wakes meet should be avoided by others at all costs.

Black Hawks Next Foes For Seals

CHICAGO (UPI) —The California Seals move in against division leading Chicago tonight after getting a 1-1 tie on the ice of runnerup Minnesota.

There's one big difference. TheBlack Hawks are red hot while the Minnesotans early in the season led the division but now have not won in the last six games.

Carol Vadnais, just named to the Western Division all-star squad, fired from the blue line with less than seven minutes to go to pull out the goal for the Seals.

Vadnais' 10th goal of the season came at 13:20 of the final period on a power play after J.P. Parise was called for hooking. Vadnais took a pass from Dick Redmond across the back of the Minnesota zone and fired in past Minnesota goalie Gump Worsley, spoiling Worsley's bid for his second shutout of the year.

Minnesota has not won a game since beating Detroit Jan. 5.

Danny Grant's 10th goal of the season at 17:20 of the second period gave the Stars a 1-0 lead. Grant took a pass from Judge Drouin who was behind the net, and fired the puck in from the edge of the faceoff circle.

The score came after a scoreless first period during which the Stars outshot the Seals 14-7, but superb goal tending by California's Gilles Meloche—who last week handed the North Stars their only shutout of the season—prevented Minnesota from taking a lead.

Minnesota outshot the Seals 22-14 over the first two periods but got only four shots on goal in the third while California got nine.

Minnesota	0	1	0—	1

First period—No scoring. Penalties: Harris 11:48; Marshall 15:17; Hicke 19:17.

Victories Set Up Key Match

Novato and Terra Linda high schools overwhelmed their wrestling opposition yesterday to get ready for an important match with each other tomorrow at Terra Linda at 6:30 p.m.

Terra Linda defeated Tamalpais, 43-18, while Novato downed San Marin, 54-12. In the other Marin County Athletic League match, Redwood topped Drake, 61-6. San Rafael drew a bye.

The victory moved Terra Linda into a tie for first place with San Rafael at 2-0. Novato ranks third at 2-1, and could scramble the race by upsetting Terra Linda. Redwood and Tam are 1-1-1, San Marin is 0-2 and Drake is 0-3.

The rest of tomorrow's schedule finds Tam at San Rafael, 6 p.m., and Drake at San Marin, 6:30. Redwood draws the bye.

Mike Weinstein (114 pounds) and Bob Morrison (156) each recorded first-period pins to lead Terra Linda's victory.

Ross Perry (135) became the first Drake wrestler ever to win a varsity match when he pinned his foe in the opening period. This is the first year Drake has had a team.

Thomas Replaced By Vic Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Duane Thomas is somewhere either in Los Angeles or Dallas today but he isn't on the National Football Conference roster for Sunday's Pro Bowl game against the American Conference's All-Stars.

The star running back of the World Champion Dallas Cowboys, rushing hero of last Sunday's Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins, failed to join the NFC squad Tuesday for practice and was replaced by Vic Washington of the San Francisco Forty Niners.

Game officials said as far as they could determine, Thomas arrived here either late Monday or early Tuesday but failed to report at the NFC practice camp.

Pro Bowl officials said they were told Thomas telephoned Cowboys coach Tom Landry in Dallas Tuesday and said he had developed a sore shoulder in the Super Bowl.

Thomas told Landry he was returning to Dallas for examination of the injury but he failed to appear there as scheduled Tuesday afternoon. A club spokesman said Thomas called back later and reported he would have the shoulder checked in Los Angeles.

Sponsors of the Pro Bowl said that in view of Thomas' failure to check in at practice, they had no choice but to replace him. Thomas was not on the original NFC roster for the Pro Bowl. He was selected last week as a replacement for Willie Ellison of the Los Angeles Rams who was scheduled for knee surgery this week.

Under the Pro Bowl rules, the next highest player in the voting of National Football League coaches is picked as the first replacement for a man who cannot participate in the game.

Like other participants in the Pro Bowl who had played in the Super Bowl, Thomas was given until Tuesday to report.

Washington was the rookie running back star of the Forty Niners the past season when he gained 811 yards rushing on 191 carries, caught 36 passes for 317 yards and returned 33 kickoffs for 839 yards. Although a rookie in the NFL, the University of Wyoming graduate played two years in the Canadian Football League.

The American Conference also made a change, adding Baltimore safety Jerry Logan as a replacement for Miami's Jake Scott who was unable to join the squad because of a hand injury he suffered against Kansas City on Christmas Day.

THEY HAVE OLYMPIC HOPES

Added Incentive For Young Skiers

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MANCHESTER CENTER, VT. — The young skiers competing in this year's Canadian-American races have an added incentive at the start: there's still an outside chance that a spectacular performance could gain them berths on their respective Olympic teams.

Canadians dominated the men's races at Bromely, with Derek Robbins of Toronto winning the giant slalom and combined titles. The girls salvaged American prestige, as 15-year-old Becky Dorsey of Beverly, Mss., won the giant slalom, Kandi McCoy of Mammoth Mountain, Calif., took the slalom and Jane Rollins, also of Mammoth Mountain, won combined honors.

Among this quintet, Robbins may well be the most likely Olympic candidate.

"I've been told I have a pretty good chance as long as I do well in a few of these races," he said after his victory.

The national teams of both Canada and the United States are now competing on the World Cup circuit in Europe as they point for the Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, nextN6month.

Ordinarily, these are the skiers who would be picked when the Olympic teams are chosen in another week or so, but it's not automatic. Injuries, poor performances by those in Europe, or strong showings by some who were left at home can still change the picture. And in Robbins' case, which is a special one, there seems to be even more chance that this could happen.

"I was hurt most of last season," he explains, "but I've won a lot of the races in our summer training camps. The guys who are in Europe now are not necessarily the frontrunners. I beat them in our downhill time trials in Chile last summer."

Because he had to sit out so much of last year, Robbins wasn't able to earn a good position on the international point system. He thus would have found himself at a big disadvantage, with poor starting positions, in European races, so it was decided to let him race instead on the easier home circuit.

He began the season in excellent form, topped by a third place at Aspen, Colo., against a tough field including several skiers who are now in Europe. Then came the giant slalom at Bromley.

Starting in 10th position, he streaked down the 5,800-foot, 40-gate course in 1:41.01 — well over a full second faster than his closest rival. Playing it a bit safer on his next run, he still turned in the third best time of 1:42.95 to win the event by nearly a second with a combined time of 3:23.96.

The victory over a field which included such U.S. standouts as Steve Lathrop, Dan Mooney and Lance Poulsen surprised some observors — but not Robbins.

"I had been skiing well, and I came here figuring I had a good chance," he said. "I just knew I had to put two good runs together. The course was fairly icy, and on the first run I did take a few chances. Then with the big lead I was a little more careful the second time."

In addition to everything else, the Bromley race proved to be a birthday present for Robbins, who had just turned 20 a few days earlier.

"That was a great way to celebrate," he said. "I'd call it the biggest win of my career."

And what about his future hopes?

"My ambition right now is to make the Olympic team," he said. "After that, I don't know. That's far enough ahead to look right now."

Drug Price Secrecy Harmful To Consumers

Two kinds of medicines are in every drug store: proprietary medicines, which are on display on the shelves where the customer can see them, and prescription drugs, which are kept in the pharmacist's room, to be measured out to fill prescriptions written by doctors.

The prices of proprietary medicines usually are plainly marked and often are widely advertised. They don't vary much from store to store. The customer knows about what he will have to pay for a bottle of Bromo-Seltzer or a package of Excedrin.

With prescription drugs, it's a different story. The prices are kept as secret as the contents. And they vary widely from pharmacy to pharmacy.

JUST HOW WIDELY they vary was disclosed by a bit of investigative reporting last week by the Sacramento Bee. A reporter took a pair of prescriptions for common brand-name drugs, Penbritin and Terramycin, to an assortment of drug stores. The price for 20 250-mg. capsules of Penbritin varied from $4.25 to $8.45. The cost for the same quantity of Terramycin ranged from $5.75 to $7.95.

Pharmaceutical organizations generally defend the price variations with the claim that some drug stores offer more service — long hours, home delivery, charge accounts — so must get more for the drugs.

Of course, these pharmacies also sell a lot of other things, from candy to suntan lotion to proprietary medicine, at prices not far out of line with the "cut-rate," no-deliver, no-charge-account stores. But the associations don't mention that.

The Bee reporter punched a rather large hole in that argument, anyhow. He reported two small stores, both offering delivery, filled the Penbritin prescription at a difference of $3.50 in price.

One reason often advanced for high prescription costs is that doctors tend to prescribe by brand name (as with Penbritin and Terramycin) ratherthan generic terms. This helps well known brands keep their prices up. But it does not explain the difference in price for the same brand among different stores.

WHAT DOES EXPLAIN that, to large extent, is a California prohibition on competitive price advertising of prescription drugs. This prohibition is imposed by the State Board of Pharmacy under authority given it by law.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley of Marin-Sonoma plans to introduce a bill in the current legislative session to remove the pharmacy board's authority to forbid prescription price advertising. He takes the position that advertising the price will help to keep it down.

We think he's right. And if his bill passes, Bagley will win a lot of thanks (and votes) from senior citizens on fixed incomes who are hurt hardest by overcharging for prescription drugs.

Dependable Nature

In a world where there are changing styles in everything from music to clothes to morality, the dependability of nature is a comfort to the soul.

Birds build nests and care for their nestlings. Plants sprout, grow, bloom and die in endless procession. Bees collect honey with single-minded devotion. Spiders build their intricate webs of the same delicacy as they always have. Jack-rabbits still bound away from their pursuers in great, erratic leaps.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Dual Role Of Grand Jury Behind Recurring Criticisms

By EARL G. WATERS

Revision of the Grand Jury will again be deliberated in the Legislature. Assemblyman Edwin Z'Berg, D-Sacramento, has disclosed that he will renew his efforts to find a solution to what has become a two-fold problem.

There has been a growing demand that the grand jury, because of its extensive use in returning indictments, be composed of a wider spectrum of the community. Yet the need to maintain membership at a level capable of carrying out its basic purpose is paramount.

English law has held that one accused is entitled to be tried by a jury of his peers, meaning equal in rank. Since the United States has no nobility, all are supposedly equal.

However, the many ethnic groups in this country have led the courts to favor trial juries which reflect a cross-section of the community, racially, economically and geographically.

THE GRAND JURY is a jury of peers in the sense that its prime duty is to peer over the records of county government. Because it serves as a watchdog of government it has traditionally been more of a blue ribbon panel. The justification for careful selection of grand jurors has been that the duties of examining local government operations require people of knowledge and experience.

But the great use which has been made of grand juries by some district attorneys for indicting purposes has brought about the demands for jurors to be more representative of the community.

During the past decade there have been a number of legislators advocating change, with some seeking to require the grand jury be selected in the same manner as trial juries.

Z'Berg has been foremost among those seeking change. But his efforts have been to preserve the existing blue ribbon grand jury for the investigative function by the creation of a second grand jury solely for returning indictments.

By this method Z'Berg believes the desires for greater minority participation can be met while at the same time the able citizen group will be maintained to oversee county government.

IT IS POSSIBLE that the desire to appease critics who attack the grand jury system as one of "gross underrepresentation of minorities" has caused everyone to lose sight of the real issue.

That is the use of the grand jury for returning indictments. There have been charges that some district attorneys over-use the grand jury for this purpose. Exactly why it is necessary to use the grand jury at all for this purpose has not been satisfactorily explained.

The over-use reduces tme time for the grand jury to spend on investigating county operations. But any use of it for indictment purposes interferes with this function.

There have been suggestions that district attorneys find it more convenient to seek indictments. This avoids the necessity of preliminary hearings where solid evidence must be presented if a person is to be brought to trial. Others have intimated that it serves to protect the district attorney from criticism in cases he really doesn't want to prosecute.

That the grand jury does not seem needed for the indictment function is reflected in the records of Fresno County, which for 15 years, prior to 1967, did not seek grand jury indictments.

Open Space Conference May Provide Answers

The future of park and open space planning, purchase and operation is at a critical point in time. Divergent viewpoints on these matters need to be resolved. Is a regional park district the best solution, is a north ridge district the answer, or should we remain with the status quo?

The all-day parks, people and open space, phase two conference to be held at Alexander Hall, San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo on Jan. 22 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. will deal with these differing approaches. Speakers on all positions will have an opportunity to air their views. . .

Willing To Recycle But Wants Some Facts

We, the public, have been hammered with the idea that in order to save our world, ecology must be observed . . .

Okay. I'm willing to go along with this and have been saving for recycling all my newspapers, cans, bottles, aluminum caps, and I have been taking time to remove both ends of the can, clean the can, smash it, bring the cans, with the aluminum caps, and the bottles to the recycling center, separate there the tin cans from the aluminum, the white bottles from the clear ones, the brown ones and the green ones. And I, and I'm certain I speak for all the conscientious recyclers in Marin County (I don't know how it is elsewhere) am willing and happy to do this to save the world for our progeny.

But then you throw an article into the I-J by Theron Newell on Jan. 12 in which he says that all of the above work is not at all necessary. He says recycling is just a passing fancy. He says there will never be a shortage of glass, no market for the used newsprint — says nothing whatever about the cans. Now, what is a poor confused patriot supposed to do?

I would certainly like to have an honest unbiased opinion from someone as to the absolute necessity, or not, of all this recycling . . .

STELLA GERSON

(Maybe the recycling is not all necessary — but it certainly helps. — Editor.)

Bus Service Loss In Hills Protested

I call your attention to the recent termination of local bus service in the Tiburon hills to the Tiburon-San Francisco Ferry. When the Golden Gate Transit took over the former Marin Transit System operated routes, they passed out notices that due to the larger buses they had, Golden Gate could no longer operate in the Tiburon hills but would essentially stay on Tiburon Boulevard.

From what I've read, it seems typical of the Golden Gate's attitude that they are providing service — take it or leave it — for their own convenience rather than for the public's. This is quite evident here where they rushed to get rid of Marin Transit Systems so they wouldn't be "bothered" with them, and neglected to use the small type buses that MTS had to serve all the once-happy riders of the Tiburon hills service.

People Can Make Some Wild Promises

People can write a political song. And people are able to protest together. We can change the state — but we can't do it alone. We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People can learn to read and write. And people are able to renew. Without all people to help us —we cannot know what it is. We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People can make some wild promises. And people are able to lie when all is truth that is spoken — men shall do their own. We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People can dream of ways tohelp, and people are able to start them. Will no one try to solve it — won't anyone give it the time? We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People can think they're in good. And people can be taken indeed. Only those who don't really care will be the ones to suffer. We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People can say they know what is right, and people can try to prove it. Seldom do they know how it is. When will they really learn? We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

People might expect to live out, and people might think to rebel. All they need is the encouragement —which nobody seems to give. We need the help of our friends. And people might try to prove it. If all people were to feel this way, we wouldn't know what's coming down. We need the help of our friends. The people shall rise and take.

Anderson Papers' Disclosures Raise Some Disturbing Questions

WASHINGTON — The key questions growing out of the "Anderson papers" are so varied in argument that they are being sorely neglected.

We need more light and less heat on these three matters:

1 — What are the consequences to the effective functioning of the U.S. government from the leaking of secret National Security Council minutes to the press?

2 — Did the administration pursue a "credibility gap" policy, talking neutrality and acting with hostility toward India in its war with Pakistan?

3 — Would it have been in the interests of the United States or the United Nations or the cause of peace to have backed India's use of armed force against Pakistan?

A FEW DAYS AGO I was talking with a Western European diplomat who remarked that many of America's allies were deeply distressed that the President had not confided to them privately the actions he would soon publicly be taking, having large effect on all of them — the new international economic policy and the Peking summit.

But wasn't there great danger that this information would leak? he was asked.

"Maybe so," he replied, "but in light of the Anderson leaks how can our leaders feel that they can talk frankly with the President of the United States and other high officials and not expect their confidential exchanges to be leaked?"

That is part of the consequence of breaching the private confidences within government.

WILL PREMIER Chou En-lai talk freely and safely with President Nixon next month lest notes be taken and find their way to Moscow?

Will the National Security Council staff feel they can offer the President candid, blunt opinions when there is the prospect that they will be made public by some dissident official?

Isn't there a right ot privacy within the councils of government in the process of evolving policy as well as outside the government?

It seems to me that the prime culprit in this matter is not just Anderson but the person or persons who violated government secrecy by making public private discussion. And this because he or they did not approve of policy or wanted to embarrass the President or try to destroy Henry Kissinger.

I see no reason to view with glee this vain, egotistical blow at the functioning of the National Security Council.

AN EX-PARTE SPOKESMAN for the administration, Herbert Klein, avows that there was no split-level policy toward India, no reason for any credibility gap. That's to be expected. But it is very nearly conclusive when the New York Times, which rarely finds reason to support the Nixon administration, confirmed it.

"A reading of the public record — as well as news reports from early December," the Times writes, "would tend to support Mr. Klein's contention that the administration was consistent in opposing India."

Was the United States unwise in opposing India's resort to force to get what it wanted in East Pakistan and was this being "hostile" to India?

India's spokesmen never felt they were being "hostile" to the United States in opposing the American role in Vietnam.

The United States never made any move to try to restrain India until it sent its army across the borders of East Pakistan and violated the U.N. Charter by resorting to force to settle its dispute.

Wherein would it be in the interest of the United States or of the United Nations or the cause of peace to condone trampling on "the sovereignty and territorial integrity of any nation," which Indian officials so long preached —and then abandoned?

Balance-Of-Power Politics Behind Mis-Step In Pakistan

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Far greater issues than the Nixon administration's credibility in saying one thing and doing another, as revealed by the Anderson papers, lie behind its world policies.

Should the American government strive to rectify the imbalance between the two great Communist powers by supporting which ever side happens to be weaker at a given time? Specifically, was it in the American national interest and in the interest of world peace to try to prevent Russian power's aggrandizement in Indij?

PRESIDENT NIXON'S "tilt" toward Pakistan was not just a preference for Pakistan, not just an effort to maintain some sort of division and balance in the Indian subcontinent. Nor was it merely an effort to make his trip to Peking a little more promising of success. Still less was it a liking for the unlamented Gen. Yahya Khan, or a piece of gratitude for Pakistan's facilitating the initial Kissinger mission. All these and other elements may have entered in.

But in the main was deepest global strategy: The ancient balance of power game which has often helped to preserve the peace down through the centuries. And, at times, has dangerously upset the peace and promoted war.

In today's world, balance is more fundamentally important than perhaps at any othar time. Freedom from massive war is preserved by the balance of nuclear power — the existence of inevitable and inacceptable retaliation if one super-power attacks the other. Only two nations have this capacity today and are likely to have it for some time to come. They are the United States and the Soviet Union. Communist China's modest nuclear and missile armory is far from capable of second-strike retaliation.

Thus China would be vulnerable to attack from the Soviet Union — attack which has been threatened more than once in recent years. The two Communist powers are not in balance. One is a super-power in the military sense. The other is far from it.

PRESIDENT NIXON'S opening to Peking was not just an attempt to rectify long ineffective American policies toward mainland China. It was a major new beginning, which might also have dividends along the way such as support in ending the Vietnam War on acceptable terms. It had expectable electoral advantages for President Nixon.

Its real implications, though, go far beyond the Vietnam War, the Indian subcontinent, and the 1972 election. An effort to achieve a balance between the two Communist powers is manifestly impossible, in any absolute sense. Only the most tremendous technical assistance would bring China up to the Russian level in thermonuclear, missile or satellite power. There is no evidence that the Peking government seeks such absolute military capability.

Short of such absolutes, it is quite probable that the Peking government welcomes contact with the Nixon administration for all that it suggests. President Nixon makes the long journey to Peking not literally but figuratively with the kow-tow. Thus western envoys, and lesser satellites, have journeyed to the gates of Peking down through the years. The prestige of the Mao-Chou government, badly batterd of recent years, is much restored. One of the two superpowers in the world makes friendly overtures. It is a significant step in the game of balance-of-power politics.

IN ITS APPLICATION to Indian-Pakistan affairs, the policy was horribly inept. Just about everything was done wrong. Russia has been greatly strengthened, the United States weakened, China is worse off.

But the fundamental geopolitical purposes were not necessarily wrong. They can hardly be publicly advocated and argued by the administration. Their validity will be tested not today, not tomorrow, but years hence. Such goals must be far more skilfully sought if they are to be justified.

Balance-of-power politics is fraught with hazard. We can only hope it may succeed. The goal, after all, is peace.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Old Report May Provide Clue To School Enigma

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Many Californians were alarmed by the National Education Association's recent report putting California per-pupil expenditures on public schools last year at 21st among the 50 states.

Jack D. Rees, executive director of the California Teachers Association, grabbed the figure as evidence of "deterioration of public education," which he promptly blamed on Gov. Ronald Reagan.

However, Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, noticed something which Rees did not mention.

"Teacher salaries in California are second in the nation, but money spent per pupil is 21st," commented Brown. "Teachers obviously have done a better job lobbying for their salaries than for pupil dollars."

FIVE YEARS AGO, the U.S. Office of Education estimated 1965-66 school year expenditure per pupil in New York at $912, highest in the nation. It put California sixth at $613.

In its new report, NEA PUTS New York's per-pupil spending — still the nation's highest — at $1,370, California's at $79.

The outcry five years ago in the Empire State, where many people thought the public schools were not doing a very good job, prompted the New York Department of Education to make an investigation.

The department sent a team into six states which it said "had one or more characteristics common to New York." One of them was California. The investigtors sought to find just where New York was spending more.

IN THEIR REPORT, published late in 1969 (these things take time), they said:

"From the outset, problems were encountered. First it became evident that there were differences among the states in the method of computing average daily attendance, the basis on which the U.S. Office of Education issued its comparative statistics. Since this fact alone would affect the computed cost per pupil, it was decided to use the more comparable fall enrollment as the basis for counting pupils."

(In California, a child is counted present in figuring average daily attendance if his absence is excused. He also is counted present if he shows up to answer one roll call, even though he may cut the rest of the school day.)

Using fall enrollment as basis, the New York team found their state spent $774 per pupil in 1965-66, or $200 more than California's $574 the same year on the same basis.

OF THIS, the investigators reported, New York spent $477 per pupil on instructional staff, only $62 more than California's $415. But it spent $40 per pupil on instructconal materials tc California's $24, and $20 per pupil on health services to California's $6. And it cost New York $38 per pupil for transportation, to California's $12.

New York had more classroom teachers, more librarians, more guidance counselors, more psychologists per 1,000 pupils than did California. But it had the same number of administrators per 1,000 pupils (3.1 at that time).

Per-pupil cost of financing retirement for school employees was $43 in New York (which included Social Security) to $31 in California. (Since then, a slate of bills improving teacher retirement have been enacted into law in California.)

THESE COMPARISONS, despite being several years old, may help explain how it is possible for California to pay the second highest average teacher salaries in the United States yet rank 21st in expenditures per pupil.

"We're going to alter that," said Assemblyman Brown, "and try to move pupil expenditures up closer to where they should be. I don't think we'll mess around with teacher salaries."

This may not be exactly the response to the NEA's findings that CTA's Rees had in mind.

Replacing Of Antioch Span Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Warning that the present Antioch Bridge could collapse "at any time" because of a ship collision, the state Department of Public Works said yesterday construction of a new span over the San Joaquin River is "desirable."

In a report to the Legislature, the department said it is developing plans for a replacement bridge adjacent to the present structure, which was knocked out of service for 10 weeks in 1970 when it was hit by a ship.

The 45-year-old bridge is one of the few crossings of the San Joaquin River in the delta area. When it is closed, motorists are forced to make lengthy detours.

The report said, "There is a risk that at any time the structure could collapse as the result of a ship collision. Ship collisions nearly collapsed the bridge in 1958, 1963 and 1970."

The department concluded, "The bridge is considered to have surpassed its optimum service life and replacement is desirable."

The department estimated that the cost of a new, four-lane bridge would range from $25 million to $45 million, depending on whether two mass transit tracks were included on the span. Construction should begin in 1981, the department said.

According to the report, "large amounts of highway funds would be required, even if Antioch were rebuilt as a toll bridge."

It said that a toll of 95 cents would raise only $8 million for construction. The department recommended agacnst imposing a toll on the Benicia and Carquinez bridges to help finance a new Antioch span because "it places a financial burden on a special group without any commensurate benefits."

The report noted that the current Antioch Bridge could remain in service for another 15 to 20 years at its current volume of 5,000 cars daily. But it added that estimates of future traffic have ranged as high as 18,000 vehicles daily.

Legislation by Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, has been introduced to require construction of a new toll bridge to replace the present one.

Moratorium In Strawberry Zoning Asked

Directors of the Strawberry Recreation District have asked Marin County supervisors to impose a six-month moratorium on all development in the Strawberry area, David E. Roberts, recreation manager, reported.

At its Monday meeting, the board passed a resolution requesting that supervisors freeze all zoning in the area and approve no further developments or variances for Strawberry during the six-month period.

Roberts said the temporary moratorium would give residents time to prepare a master plan for the area, working in conjunction with the county planning department.

The board also accepted the resignation of director James K. Garner, for reasons of health.

Allowed To Plead Guilty

Mark Jefferson Lee, 23, of Terra Linda, who had been accused of rape and conspiracy to commit rape, has been allowed to plead guilty in Marin Superior court to a misdemeanor charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

He was sentenced to six months in the county jail with credit for the time he has already served since his arrest Nov. 28.

Lee and three other young men were charged with taking a 17-year-old girl to the Sportsmen's Lodge in Novato and attacking her.

Charges against the other three were dismissed after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Delay Of Primary Election Is Sought

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, has introduced a bill postponing California's June 6 primary election—except for presidential balloting — until Sept. 5 to save money.

Delaying the primary would save "millions of dollars" for county clerks who will face a problem of gearing up for California's reapportioned legislative and congressional districts, which still have not been set," Lewis said Monday.

Small Airplane Protection Urged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A passenger injured in the crash of a private airplane would be able to sue the pilot under a bill which has been introduced by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento.

Private pilots are currently exempt from civil suits in injury or death cases unless there is "wiliful misconduct" of "gross negligence."

"The pilot almost has to deliberately crash the plane before you can sue him," Z'berg said Monday.

NO HEARTY CHEERING

American Tel Eyeing A Comeback

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

For American Telephone & Telegraph's three million shareholders, the stock market's Yuletide celebration didn't bring much cheer.

The surging rally that has lifted the Dow Jones industrial average by close to 100 points in the past month seems to have bypassed "Ma Bell," the nation's largest utility.

Down some 20 per cent since the beginning of the year, the shares are only slightly above their 1971 low of 40¾.

During the third quarter, the nation's biggest mutual funds sold almost twice as many shares of the phone company giant as they bought. At current depressed levels, the shares sell at a 10 per cent discount from book value — the lowest such valuation in 12 years.

Despite the fact that AT&T is in the Wall Street doghouse, a number of analysts believe the pessimism has been overdone and that the stock possesses significant recovery potential in 1972.

Analysts aren't predicting any major upswing over the short term. But they are reasonably confident that after reporting three years of essentially flat earnings of about $4 a share AT&T will fare better next year. The prospect of higher earnings is sufficiently bright, analysts say, to anticipate some improvement in the stock's historically low price earnings multiple of 10.1. The $2.60-a-share dividend provides a handsome 6 per cent yield.

A rebounding economy, lower interest rates, and the likelihood of some rate increases are key reasons why Standard and Poor's outlook believes the stock will show greater zip in the months ahead. The 1972 net per share could "well rise 5 per cent or so to the area of $4.20," if the company gets a "good share" of the $1.6 billion in pending intrastate rate increases it is now seeking, S&P reckons.

Analysts say reported earnings of 99 cents a share for the November quarter didn't look bad in the light of a sharp increase in operating costs. Most of the jump reflected a 16 per cent wage increase granted to the majority of AT&T's one-million employees just prior to the wage-price freeze. During the freeze, revenues lagged because regulatory bodies didn't act on rate increases the company had pending in more than 30 states.

A critical factor in the company's 1972 prospects, is the rate of return the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) will allow the company on its interstate rate base. With more than $500 million pending in interstate boosts, AT&T is seeking a 9.5 per cent return on its invested capital — almost 1.5 per cent more than it presently obtains. It needs this to attract more than $4 billion in external funds to fulfill next year's facilities-expansion program.

(In a related area, the FCC recently dropped a second phase of its AT&T investigation because of an increased work load. This phase would have dealt with other issues affecting AT&T's rate requirements, such as the prices and profits of its manufacturing arm, Western Electric.)

To keep its debt ratio from rising much above 45 per cent, the company will have to rely more heavily on equity financing. Some brokers estimate the company will need to raise as much as $1.5 to $1.75 billion in new equity next year and for a few years thereafter.

The prospect of heavy equity financing has been a major depressant on the stock, since issuance of more shares will probably drag down per-share earnings growth in the future. Nevertheless, some analysts believe that any earnings dilution will be more than offset by a pickup in revenue growth.

To minimize the earnings dilution, especially at a time when the common stock is selling below book value, AT&T plans to make more use of preferred stock in future financings. It recently announced the sale of $625 million of non-convertible preferred to a group of insurance companies. The new financing, part of a $1 billion private-placement package, removes the need to undertake a common stock offering in the near future.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Market Gyrations Trouble Investor

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have held common stocks for many years through numerous bull and bear markets. I must admit that recent sharp swings in what I had always thought were stable blue chips have me alarmed about the market. Do you think this is a temporary aberration? If not why has the character of the stock market changed?—C.T.

A. Unless there are some fundamental changes in the structure of the stock market I am afraid the phenomenon you describe will not only continue but will become more common. A share price drop of 20% in one trading session occurs with increasing frequency, indicative of a serious and growing instability within the market structure.

The why of this instability is the increasing institutionalization of the market and the liquidity problems which have accompanied this growth. Institutions, which accounted for 31 per cent of Big Board volume only a decade ago, contribute about 80 per cent of volume today. This has led to a concentration of daily transactions by a relatively small number of professional money managers. Within this specialized group there tends to be less diversity of opinion, thus when one sells, many sell and vice-versa, whereas with broader public participation, as in the recent past, there is usually a buyer available to match every seller.

The burden placed on the specialist system by this changing market structure has underscored the inadequacy of this method of transaction. Not only is the specialist system antiquated in terms of poor price performance, reflecting their lack of competition, but also in terms of insufficient capital to absorb the large blocks traded by institutions.

Convincing investors like you that the stock market is sound is one of the objectives cited by the S.E.C. in its request to Congress for greater power to intervene and supervise the industry. Since public participation is a vital factor in a healthy marketplace, some recognition of this by the industry as well as by the S.E.C. would be a reassuring sign.

Change Of Ownership Of Western Sport Shop Of San Rafael Is Told

The operation of Western Sport Shop, San Rafael, is now in the hands of Jack Pinckney of Novato and John Eberhardt of Corte Madera, who have purchased the business from Eugene L. (Gene) Thompson of San Rafael.

The new owners have been working in the store for some time — Pinckney about 11 years and Eberhardt six years.

Thompson owned Western Sport for 27 years. Originally on A Street, the store was moved to 902 Third Street in 1961. Sale of the business does not necessarily mean his complete retirement. He plans to work in the store from time to time.

BANK OF CALIFORNIA'S new (and first) office in Marin is now expected to open Feb. 14 at 575 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Greenbrae.

It will be managed by a former Marinite, James K. Battaglia, who now lives in San Francisco but expects to move back here, and John Murray Vandall of Larkspur will be assistant manager.

CONGRATULATIONS are in order for W and J Sloane for a well conducted operation during its first two years at the Northgate Mall. It blends in so well with the established Northgate shopping pattern you would think it had been here selling home furnishings since the beginning of the center.

A birthday party was held last week by store manager Jaro Stephan and his staff at Zanzes of Northgate.

MARTIN T. FREDERICKS of Fairfax has been appointed to the newly created position of manager of special projects in the agricultural division of Pfizer, Inc. He will be headquartered in New York. He joined the company in 1955 as a territory manager and moved up through several positions to agricultural advisor to the senior managing director of Pfizer Taito Co., Ltd. in Tokyo.

FRANK A. SAUNDERS of San Rafael has been cited by Brown and Bigelow for his 1971 achievements as an account executive. He has been with the firm since 1945 and is a member of the company's Century Club.

TIBURON VINTNERS, INC. plans a public offering by prospectus of approximately 325,000 shares of its common stock in the early spring.

Registration statement for the offering is scheduled to be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission next month and will include about 175,000 share to be sold by the company and another 150,000 shares to be offered by various stockholders, none of whom is an officer or director of the company.

Market On Decline In Early Trading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks fell across a broad front in active trading today. After about two hours, declines outscored advances by more than two-to-one.

Some analysts observed that the market is digesting some of its recent gains. Others said there probably is a little caution prior to the delivery of President Nixon's State of the Union message on Thursday.

Resumption of the West Coast longshoremen's strike did litlle to encourage traders. A ban on the shipment of all military cargo, including equipment for the Vietnam War, was imposed by shippers on the Pacific Coast in order to hasten settlement of the walkout.

Airlines, electronics, and chemicals were among the day's softest spots, with losses ranging to more than a point. Steels, motors, aircrafts, and building materials generally surrendered fractions. Rails pointed in both directions.

Prices also backed off in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Among the most active Amex issues were West Decalta Petroleum down fractionally on over 30,000 shares, Arizona-Colorado Land also down slightly on 30,000 shares, and Topper about unchanged on 29,000 shares.

10-Cent Quarterly Dividend Declared

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The board of directors of Beneficial Standard Corp. has declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 10 cents a share on the company's common stock.

The dividend is payable Feb. 18 to shareholders of record on Feb. 1.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, CPA

Personal Exemptions Vary Depending On Circumstances

Everybody is entitled to one personal exemption which means that for 1971, they could make $675 tax free. (It will be $750 for 1972.)

If you are over 65 years of age, you are entitled to two personal exemptions and can make $1,350 tax free. If you are blind, you are entitled to an additional personal exemption of $675. This means that if you are over sixty-five years of age and blind, you can make $2,025 tax free.

There is also a low income allowance so that you are not required to file a return at all, unless your income is at least:

Single individual, $1,700; single individual 65 or over, $2,300; married couple filing jointly, $2,300; married couple, one spouse 65 or over, $2,900; married couple, both 65 or over, $3,500; and married person filing separtely, $600.

Of course, if you have self-employment income of $400 or more, you must file and pay your self-employment tax.

If you had tax withheld during 1971, you will want to file and get your refund.

No one is entitled to use another person's personal exemption.

You cannot file a joint return with your spouse if your spouse is claimed as a dependent on any other taxpayer's return.

You are entitled to the dependency credit for certain dependents, and under certain circumstances you may claim the credit for dependents who also filed their personal income tax returns and claim their personal exemptions on these income tax returns.

If your child was married in 1971, you may be able to claim him or her as a dependent on your 1971 income tax returns, and the child may get his own deduction, too. Certain conditions must be met:

The newlyweds must not file a joint return for 1971. If they do, then the deduction for you is lost.

You must have furnished over half the cost of your child's support for 1971, but the child does not have to have lived with you at any time during the year. Your child's gross income must not have been more than $675 in 1971, unless he or she was a student for five months or more, or was under 19 years old on December 31, 1971, in which case the income test does not apply. Remember that in California half of what your child's new spouse earns after the wedding is considered income of your child.

If your child meets all the tests for dependency, then you should claim him or her on your tax return.

The couple should file separate returns, each claiming his or her own exemption. In California it does not matter if one spouse had no income, for under community property rules, income received after marriage can be divided between the two.

This tax saving plan will save you anywhere from zero to $455 depending on your tax bracket. Remember that the first and most important thing to do is to make sure that your child does not file a joint return with the new spouse.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most Surgery On Intestines Needn't Require A Transplant Of Organs

A Floridian writes: "We have read about transplants involving the heart, kidney, liver, and eye, but nothing is said about colon, or intestine transplants. How come? For example, in colon cancer, the diseased portion is removed and the patient becomes a 'packet' case with a reasonable life expectancy."

The small and large intestines are 28 feet long and most lesions that develop seldom extend beyond one, or two feet. As a rule, the involved part can be removed, and the two cut ends are sutured together. In other words, a transplant is not needed to save the person's life.

BY "POCKET" we assume you are referring to a colostomy. This procedure is done when a tumor obstructing the intestine can be removed but the cut ends cannot be sewn together. An artificial opening is made to allow the intestinal waste products to escape. Colostomy also is done when a colon infection exists, and it becomes necessary to reroute the intestinal contents in order to rest the irritated part. Often this is done when severe diverticulitis of the colon exists, or a large tumor is infected, and needs "cooling off" before removal.

In colostomy (or ileostomy), an opening is made on one side of the abdominal wall. The open end of the intestine is brought to the outside and secured with sutures. The other end is sewed up and left in the abdomen. The original incision is stitched together, and the new opening allows the intestinal contents to escape into a plastic disposable strapless bag. This is the "pocket" referred to by our reader.

HUNDREDS OF thousands of people are living comfortably with a colostomy. In addition, there are many "ileostomy" or "ostomy" clubs in larger cities where members meet to discuss their common problems. Wearing a colostomy bag need not be messy or disagreeable. The slight inconvenience is a small price to pay for being alive and comfortable.

Questions on medical topics will be answerd by mail if stamped, self-adjessed envelope accompanies request to the Indqendent-Journal.

MASSAGE AND INFECTION

S.O. writes: Is it dangerous to massage the leg when phlebitis is present?

REPLY

Massage encourages the infection to spread. In addition, the blood in an inflamed vein is clotted and when the part is rubbed, or kneaded, there is danger that a particle will break off and travel to the lungs.

CAN'T REMEMBER NAMES

R.F. writes: I'm in my seventies and remember faces but not names. Is this caused by hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

This is common at 70, and is usually ascribed to hardening of the arteries or, better, to the aging process.

FURROWED BROW

H.I. writes: Can anything be done to erase the crease on the forehead between the eyes?

REPLY

Yes, but you will need the attention of a plastic surgeon.

Two Suits Filed In Oil Spill

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two suits were filed Tuesday as a result of last year's San Francisco Bay oil spill.

A group called the International Bird Care Center asked $175,000 in expenses and $5 million in punitive damage from Standard Oil Co., whose tankers collided and caused the

Would-Be Robber Gets A Shock

A robber who saw easy pickings in a pregnant housewife, her mother and infant daughter got a rude shock last night. Not only did the two women chase him off after he grabbed a purse, but he was arrested soon after.

Brandishing a gun, the young thief tried to force his way into the car of Linda Minnick, 25, of Novato, in the parking lot of the Corta Madera Shopping Center, according to police.

But police said the scrappy housewife, who is expecting a baby in two weeks, and her 66-year-old mother fought off the man who kept yelling, "Move over, move over. I have a gun."

Mrs. Minnick tore out a handful of the robber's long blond locks as he escaped with her purse at 11:30 p.m., police said.

Fifteen minutes later police arrested Paul K. McSweeney, 24, of 504 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, at a nearby gas station. Mrs. Minnick's purse was found in a bathroom, police said.

McSweeny was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of attempted kidnapping, robbery, assault and battery and having narcotics paraphernalia. He was held in lieu of $7,500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Police said that while searching McSweeny they found a toy cap pistol and a balloon bag containing injecting equipment and a vial marked "cocaine" that contained a clear liquid.

The man has a long record of arrests for assault and battery, burglary and narcotics possession dating back to 1967. He was ordered to jail May 19, 1970, for burglary and escape.

League Field On White School Land Authorized

Development of a regulation Little League baseball field at White Hill School was authorized last night by the Fairfax School District board.

The facility will be a cooperative venture among the city, school district and Fairfax Little League, according to school district Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The move came at the request of Joseph Casalnuovo, a director of Fairfax Little League, who estimated total cost of the project, if much of the labor is done by volunteers, at $2,500.

Joann Walla, chairman of the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission, told the school board that the city would be willing to contribute labor and equipment, and Fairfax Recreation Director Anthony Barbera said a fund-raising basketball game has been set for March 23 at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Barbera said a team fielded by the San Francisco 49ers will play a Drake high school faculty team.

The school board authorized spending the $2,500 — less whatever is raised by the basketball game. But it also said 50 per cent of whatever the district spends will be reimbursed by the little league, Hammond said.

The school board last night also authorized spending $1,000 for purchase of library furniture, and adjourned to its next regular meeting Feb. 1.

Board members also will attend a community information meeting sponsored by the district at 8 p.m. Tuesday at White Hill School. The session will present four educators in a discussion of concepts and innovations in education.

Hammond said the speakers will be Sister Susan Olson of Immaculate Heart School in Belmont; Robert Mueller of Presidio Hills, a private school in San Francisco; James Kirchanski of Three R Schools, in San Rafael, and Roger Steinhorst of the Planned Learning Center in San Rafael.

County Schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis will moderate the discussion.

Crews Are Announced For Skylab Exploration

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Commander Alan L. Bean said today the most important job the house-sized orbiting laboratory will have next year is to see if man can work and live in weightlessness space for many weeks at a time.

"We really don't know what's going to happen to a guy in the long term," Bean said at a news conference introducing the three three-man crews which will occupy the Skylab for eight months in orbit 270 miles high.

"This is the first time we've ever had the space available to really adequately test a guy up there to see how he behaves under zero gravity for long periods," Bean said. The longest U.S. spaceflight so far has lasted 14 days and the longest successtul Soviet flight lasted 18 days.

Bean, 39, who hopes to spend eight weeks in orbit, will command the second Skylab mission in August and September of 1973. Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr., 41, who walked on the moon with Bean during Apollo 12, will command the first mission set for launch May 1, 1973. It will last 28 days.

Gerald P. Carr, 39, will head the third and final mission set to blast off from Cape Kennedy Oct. 28, 1973. His mission also is to last eight weeks and will wind up the Skylab space station effort as it is now planned.

Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, a Navy doctor, and Paul $$c100$jet pilot, will lift off July 30, 1973 J. Weitz, a Navy pilot, will ride in a modified Apollo space ship to dock with Skylab less than 24 hours after the 188,000pound laboratory rockets into orbit April 30, 1973.

They will live and work aboard Skylab for 28 days.

Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott, a civilian scientist-astronaut, and Jack R. Lousma, a Marine jet pilot, willlift off July 30, 1973 for a 56-day stay.

Carr, Dr. Edward C. Gibson, a civilian scientist-astronaut, and William R. Pogue, an Air Force jet pilot, will blast off Oct. 28, 1973 for the final eight-week stay.

Skylab will be constructed from a modified third stage of the giant Saturn 5 moon rocket. It will carry 53 experiments involving medicine, sun astronomy, space manufacturing, earth resources and the effects of weightlessness on living things.

Catholic Teachers For Union

Lay teachers at seven Bay Area Catholic High Schools — including Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield — voted yesterday to be represented by an AFL-CIO affiliated teachers organization.

A majority of 160 teachers who voted cast ballots for the Secondary Teachers Association, which affiliated itself with the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, during a strike last year.

The group did not win a majority at Marin Catholic, but teachers there will be bound by the overall majority vote.

Rev. Francis A. Lacey, principal at Marin Catholic, said 20 of the school's 22 lay teachers voted in the election conducted by the State Conciliation Service.

The AFT-affiliated Secondary Teachers Association got nine votes at Marin Catholic, Father Lacey said. A newly formed Independent Secondary Teachers Association — without AFT or AFL-CIO affiliation — got 10, and one teacher voted for no union at all.

In the total vote, the AFT affiliate received 81 of 160 votes cast. The independent group got 68.

Gerald Killian, president of the winning Secondary Teachers Association, said three teachers voted for no union, four did not vote and eight votes were challenged.

Even if the challenges were upheld, his association still would have a majority, Killian said, but by agreement of all parties, the eight challenged ballots will not be opened.

Killian's group led the three-and-a-half-week strike which began last November. Ten of Marin Catholic's 22 lay teachers participated in the walkout, joined by four nuns.

Teachers returned to their jobs Dec. 9 when an agreement was reached between their association and the Archdiocese of San Francisco, but the archdiocese said the contract would be signed only if a secret ballot showed the majority of lay teachers favored affiliation with the AFT, which had participated in the strike settlement.

Father Lacey said today that in light of yesterday's vote, the contract will be signed. "That was the deal," he said.

Drawings For Campus Are Studied

An ad hoc citizens committee for Indian Valley Colleges held its first meeting last night to look at revised architect's drawings of the proposed Novato campus of the Marin Community College District.

According to Dr. Ernest H. Berg, president of the unbuilt Indian Valley Colleges, the 40-member citizens' group liked the renderings, but another meeting was set for Jan. 27 at a place to be named to meet with the architects, Neptuen and Thomas of Pasadena.

Berg said the committee wanted to ask about drainage and to hash out the question of whether the architecture of each of the proposed three colleges should have a uniform design.

The committee elected Harry Moore as president, and Grace Mitchell, a leader promotion of the unsuccessful $16.8 million bond issue last November, was chosen secretary, Berg said.

He said about half the committee members are from Novato.

Soviets Seeking Vessels' Release

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Soviet Embassy said today tpat two fishing vessels seized by a Coast Guard icebreaker within the 12-mile limit of an Alaskan island were seeking shelter from heavy ice and other "unforeseen circumstances," and were not violating U.S. fishing grounds.

An embassy spokesman asked that the Coast Guard release the two Soviet trawlers.

State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said of the Soviet request: "I can't speculate what will be the response of competent U.S. officials.

"This is essentially a fisheries problem in the hands of the Coast Guard," he said.

The two Soviet trawlers and a U.S. icebreaker remained near St. Matthew Island in the Bering Sea, with the trawlers apparently refusing to move toward a U.S. port. There was no immediate indication what the next U.S. move would be.

The Soviet ships were seized Tuesday by the Coast Guard icebreaker Storis about 9.4 miles from the Alaskan island. The confrontation developed into a chase when one of the ships attempted to break and run with U.S. boarding crews still aboard, and at one point the Storis was given permission to fire warning shots although i proved not to be necessary.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman said, "We are ready to discuss and settle the matter of the two fishing boats but there is no reason to hold up the ships or force them into an American port."

The spokesman said the Soviet Embassy had proposed to the State Department that the Soviet fishing captain or another responsible Soviet officer accompany the Coast Guard icebreaker back to American territory to work out a solution to the problem.

The spokesman said that the Soviet factory ship, Lamut, had apparently been forced into the U.S. fishing zone by particularly heavy ice and circumstances beyond his control. The fishing zone extends beyond the American three mile territorial limit to a distance 12 miles out to sea.

The Coast Guard said there was pack (broken) ice about one foot thick in the area at the time of the seizure, and that winds were 29 miles per hour steady with a temperature of 24 degrees.

The Soviet spokesman asserted that there had been no violation of U.S. territorial waters, and objected to its two vessels, the Lamut and the Kolyvan, being taken to the port of Adak in the Aleutian Islands.

"It would take three days to go there and three days to come back. This would mean a loss of at least a week in the factory ship's work schedule and a consequent loss in its production towards fulfilling its goal under the current five-year plan," the spokesman said.

Request On Two Tennis Courts Gain

The Reed School District board last night gave tentative approval to the town of Corte Madera to build two tennis courts on an unused 1.2-acre portion of the district's Granada School site.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said the board approved the $25,000 project in principle, though final approval will not come until a formal agreement between the town and the district is prepared.

Phase one of the project will consist of two tennis courts, an access road and parking lot behind the school, which is located in the Corte Madera Town limits, Giovanniello said.

The second phase would cost about $45,000 and consist of landscaping, pathways, picnic areas, restrooms, a tennis backboard and a child's play pool, he said.

Corte Madera will seek a $70,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the project, which will not cost the Reed district anything, Giovanniello said.

In other business, the board heard a report on fourth and sixth grade testing, which showed students strong in reading and math but relatively weak in language skills.

Giovanniello said the board told him to study programs which could bring language scores up and to return with proposals at an unspecified future meeting.

A 10-week leave of absence was granted Susan Allen, Granada School teacher, so she can finish a student teaching obligation. The board hired Susan Perry as a part-time library clerk at $2.41 per hour.

New Parks Chairman Is Elected

Renate Barton has been elected chairman of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission, succeeding Martin C. White who resigned.

Attorney John A. Trumball, who filled the vacancy left by White, was sworn into office at the commission's meeting Monday night.

A request by Novatans to preserve historical landmarks including the city's first post office, a small wooden building threatened by development — was referred to Parks and Recreation Director Edward W. Adams for study.

Commissioners commended recreation supervisor Gary Howell for his work since September 1966. Howell will leave at the end of the month to become recreation director in San Anselmo.

The commission also endorsed changing a city ordinance on park closing. Under the plan, parks would close at 10 p.m. Trumball dissented in the vote.

2 Executives Die In Falls From Bridge

Two men, a San Francisco newspaper executive and an East Bay real estate broker, died yesterday in plunges from the Golden Gate Bridge.

The California Highway Patrol said Wah Han Ng, 61, advertising manager for the Chinese Voice, a San Francisco newspaper, died at 9:50 a.m. and James Aldo Caggiano, 70, of Alameda, at 3 p.m.

Marin Coroner's Investigator Keith C. Craig said it was unknown whether Ng leaped or fell and asked witnesses to call him.

A bridge painter told officers he saw Ng's body fall past him to the rocks at Lime Point on the Marin shore near the north tower. Ng's car was found at Vista Point and a Polaroid camera discovered on the sidewalk.

Craig said Ng apparently had no relatives in America. Funeral was pending today at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley.

In the second plunge, a highway patrol officer said he spotted Caggiano at the rail near the south tower on the bridge's east side and turned his car around because "something didn't look right."

Before he could return, bridge workers motioned to him that the man had jumped. His car was found at the parking lot of the Bridge Administration Building near the Toll Plaza, with his wallet in the glove compartment.

Both bodies were recovered by the Coast Guard.

A Proposal For Later Primary

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill pushing back the date of this year's primary election from June 6 to Aug. 22 except for the presidential contest was introduced Tuesday in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, was the second bill submitted this week which would put off the election because of problems facing county clerks in primary races for Congress and the legislature.

Clerks complained they did not have sufficient time to prepare for the elections because of the lateness of the legislature in acting on reapportionment.

Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, Monday introduced a bill postponing the primary until Sept. 5.

Fire Protection Bid For Los Ranchitos

The Terra Linda Community Services District board agreed last night that it would contract to provide fire protection service to Los Ranchitos if residents there want it which they apparently do.

The board indicated its willingness to provide the service in response to a query from the Los Ranchitos Homeowners Association.

George Sawyer, president of the association, said Los Ranchitos, now served by the Marin County Fire Department, was seeking "better, more responsive protection, particularly as regards to structural fires."

He said the homeowners will now seek approval from the Marin Local Agency Formation Commission to establish a county services area to contract with the Terra Linda district.

The Terra Linda Community Services District board also:

POOL — Contracted with The Pool Scene of San Rafael for cleaning and servicing of the community center pool at $205 a month.

SWIMMING — Agreed to open the pool seven days a week, instead of six as in the past, beginning April 15, and set the price for family memberships for Terra Linda residents at $45, up $5 from last year, and $75 for nonresidents, up $15.

SPENDING — Approved spending $100 for purchase of three six-foot sections of aluminum pipe to repair lights in the park; $400 for renovation of restrooms at the community center and $100 for a fire hydrant fitting for the fire department.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next regular meeting Feb. 15.

Gas Consumption Up 14 Per Cent In Marin

Natural gas consumption in Marin County last month was up 14 per cent over December of 1970, as homeowners burned more than 1.1 billion cubic feet of gas to keep warm during the cold spell.

Gas users in Sonoma County showed an approximate 9 per cent increase.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. officials in San Francisco have expressed concern about the demands upon the gas supply system, which caused some electric power generating facilities to discontinue burning gas during peak gas usage periods during December.

"The national situation of growing shortages of proved gas reserves has caused PG&E serious concern and we are taking measures of several kinds to ensure our ability to serve this area over the longer range," said Edward F. Sibley, vice president of gas operations for the utility.

New gas customers in both counties increased only slightly during the year, according to company officials — not nearly enough to account for the increase in consumption.

Gas customers in Marin County, for example, used 1,193,725,800 cubic feet of gas during December of 1971, compared with 1,043,886,300 in December of 1970.

In Sonoma County, gas users burned 1,273,761,700 cubic feet during December of 1971, compared with 1,126,942,600 cubic feet.

PG&E said it delivered four billion cubic feet of gas throughout the Bay Area on one day during the cold spell. It was the first time the company had produced such a volume of gas.

In order to provide for such heavy consumption, the utility switches some of its electrical power generating plants to an alternate fuel — low sulfur oil — in order to provide for both electrical and gas needs.

"We have as good a supply of gas as any large utility in the country," said Sibley. Gas from El Paso Natural Gas Co. provides 41 per cent of the Bay Area gas, gas from Canada makes up 34 per cent, and the remainder, 25 per cent, comes from California producers.

Advisory Group Approves Duplex

A site plan for a duplex proposed for 19-21 Grove Street was approved last night by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee, secretary Evelyn McCrary reported.

The duplex is being built by Stanton and Peck, a real estate firm.

Ferry System To Be Discussed

Golden Gate Bridge District plans for an expanded ferry system will be discussed at the first 1972 meeting of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin to be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Edna Maguire School, 80 Lomita Drive in Mill Valley.

Speaker will be Stephen C. Leonoudakis, San Francisco attorney and member of the district board.

Agency Is Supported On Ridgeland

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs told county supervisors yesterday it supported the county redevelopment agency's handling of the Marin City ridgeland controversy.

Muriel S. Appenzeller, chairman of the council, said an investigation by her group had resulted in a clean bill of health for the redevelopment panel.

The agency, along with the county's housing authority, have been under attack by some Marin City residents for proposed release of valuable ridgelands to a New York development firm.

In return, the two agencies hope to regain development rights to flatlands in the heart of the predominantly low-income community.

Last week, the county board of supervisors, after listening to complaints from Marin City residents, directed County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to investigate a proposal to disband the redevelopment agency.

In a matter related to the proposed swap of lands, Supervisor Michael Wornum — who was appointed last week to take part in the land swap negotiations in New York — announced today that negotiations have been delayed one week. He now will travel to New York next week, he said.

Boyd Museum Elects Slate

Robert A. Roumiguiere, a San Rafael real estate broker, has been elected president of Board of Trustees of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science.

Other officers elected Monday were Jan Logan of San Rafael, vice president; Barbara Rutner of Novato, secretary, and William Richardson of Ross, treasurer. New trustees elected to the board for one year terms were Allen Bernes of Fairfax, Michael Mertz of San Rafael, Mary Jo Newell of San Anselmo, Adrian Van Herwynen of San Rafael and Rollin Warner Jr. of Belvedere.

Marin Country Club Estates Elects Officers

William R. Bills of 70 Fairway Drive was elected President of Marin Country Club Estates Homeowners Association last night at the association's annual meeting.

Bills, who served as president in 1961, succeeded Col. Ralph R. Patterson, who had served in the post two years.

Vance A. Terry was elected vice president; Harold Collin, Treasurer, and Joan Kett, secretary.

Elected directors at-large assigned to specific programs were Thomas G. Telfer, architectural control; Robert W. Dinsmore, entertainment; Larry T. Kett, membership, and David D. Drobis, environment.

John L. Haff, chairman of the environmental committee, reported the association has launched a project aimed at covering bare hillside cuts with vegetation.

NEA Errs In State's School Spending Ranking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Following a blast from Gov. Ronald Reagan, the National Education Association has admitted it erred in ranking California 31st among the states in the amount it spends on each public school child.

The NEA said Tuesday California should have been ranked 16th. It blamed the mistake on an error in the figures the education association used to figure expenditures.

In a telephone conversation with NEA officials in Washington D.C., the Sacramento Bee said it was told the teacher's organization had recalculated its figures after Reagan accused it of using "complete and selective statistics."

Cluster Zoning Before Council

The Tiburon Planning Commission will consider prezoning of 29.6 acres of land in unit 4 of the Reedlands subdivision to a cluster residential zone when it meets at 8 p.m. today at the Music Room of Del Mar School.

Security Capital Corp. has applied for the prezoning as a condition to annexing to the city and intends to build 131 single-family homes.

The commission, after lengthy discussion Jan. 3, set a special meeting for tonight to consider the matter further. Members said they favored fewer units on the land.

Also on tonight's agenda is discussion of a master plan for a residential and commercial development on 44 acres in downtown Tiburon.

Retirement Fund Case To Court

In an effort to get county officials to negotiate deductions for the county retirement fund, the Marin Probation Workers' chapter and Social Workers' chapter, Local 535, has filed suit in Marin Superior Court.

The union said in the suit that its members, along with other county employees, have had 2.27 per cent of their base salaries deducted each month for the retirement fund since last July 1.

A spokesman said that it is the union's position that the figure was subject to negotiation.

The union asks the court to issue an alternate writ of mandate ordering the county to "confer in good faith" with the union over the matter.

A hearing has been set for Feb. 9 before Judge Henry J. Broderick.

New Deputy Director For Space Program

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Sigurd A. Sjoberg, who entered the U.S. space program while Dr. Werner Von Braun still was exploring rocket propulsion in Germany, has been named deputy director of the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Sjoberg, who helped found the spacecraft center in 1961, Tuesday succeeded Christopher C. Kraft Jr., 47. Kraft was named director of the center Friday to replace Dr. Robert R. Gilruth.

Top School Citizen Is Best Driver

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —High school students who have high citizenship ratings in school tend to be better drivers than those with poor records, a state Department of Motor Vehicles study said yesterday.

The department issued the results of a four-year study in which it followed the life histories and driving records of 14,000 young California motorists between 16 and 20 years old.

The study said "poor school adjustment, poor academic achievement, high driving mileage and number of cigarettes smoked" were generally connected to young persons frequently involved in accidents and cited for traffic violations.

"Citizenship grade, a rating by teachers, was the best single predictor of a driver's traffic conviction and accident record, it said.

The study also said students with good scholastic grades had fewer accidents.

Classroom driver education and behind-the-wheel driver training at school appear to reduce accident involvement of girls "but have little, if any, effect on the involvement of boys," the study said. "Personality factors outweigh driver training in determining how a teen-ager drives.

The study also concluded:

—Increasing the licensing age from 16 to 18 "does not seem warranted" because teen-agers only slightly improve their driving performance during their first three years behind the wheel. It said true driving improvement begins in the fourth year of driving.

—Speed was the most common type of teen-aged driver violation. Failure to heed signs was second.

—Boys in the study averaged three traffic violations in their first four years of driving—four times as many as girls.

—Only 15 per cent of the boys and 44 per cent of the girls in the study completed their first four years of driving with no accidents or traffic violations.

System Conversion

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — Malaysia is converting to the metric system of weights and measures but won't complete the process until the end of 1981, the government announced.

Angelina Soldavini Dinner Is Planned

More than 200 persons, including California State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest, are expected to attend a dinner Saturday honoring Angelina J. Soldavini, retiring San Rafael treasurer and tax and license collector.

Other special guests expected to attend, according to City Mgr. James H. McCown, are Mary Stonier, president of the California Municipal Treasurers Association, and Albert M. Teglen, past grand president of the Italian Catholic Federation. Miss Soldavini is an officer in both organizations.

The 8 p.m. dinner at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, San Rafael, will be preceded by no-host cocktails at 6:30 p.m.

McCown said a limited number of reservations are still available and can be made through the city clerk's office at city hall.

Miss Soldavini is retiring Jan. 31 after 44 years of employment with the city. She has been treasurer since 1957.

Apartment Building's Design Is Approved

The Larkspur Architectural Committee has approved the design of 23 apartments and a savings and loan building, according to John W. Appleton, city planning director.

The two proposals approved Monday now go to the city planning commission for study.

The apartments are being sought for lots from 45 to 55 Corte Real by Plantech Corp. of Mill Valley, Appleton said. Three buildings are planned.

Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association won approval of a planned two-story office building at 511 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Appleton said. He said the savings and loan company plans to use about two-thirds of the first floor for a branch office and rent out the rest.

Pleads Guilty To Fraud Count

Donald Ray Turner, 21, of Marin City, has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to one count of credit card fraud and a second credit card charge was dismissed.

He is to be sentenced Friday.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson indicated in court that Turner will probably be given a year in jail or will be committed to a state hospital for drug treatment.

Turner was arrested May 6 by San Rafael police who said he attempted to purchase tires at a service station using a stolen credit card.

Turner was remanded to jail Monday after he pleaded guilty.

Architects Report On Agenda

A report by architect Aaron Green on a proposal to remodel Central School to accomodate city offices, a council chamber, recreational facilities and a library will be considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

On Dec. 21 Green told the city council the renovation, which the city is considering, could cost up to $690,000, or about the same amount needed to construct a new building.

At that time the council asked that Green's report be submitted to the city planning and recreation commissions and library board for recommendations.

In other business, the commission will discuss council suggestions for changes in the proposed central waterfront district zone.

Opening of the sidewalk through Vina Del Mar Park, also recommended by the council, will be considered by the planners.

In addition, the commission will hold a public hearing on a request from Heath Ceramics for a variance to expand a nonconforming building on Gate 5 Road.

Buildup Of Navy, Air Force Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has issued a report calling on the country to build up the Navy and Air Force and cut back the size of the Army.

It also said "we should seriously consider a regulation whereby classified information will automatically be published after a limited period of time, for instance, after one year. This may pave the way toward a useful arms control agreement with the Russians."

Life Of Squalor For Vietnamese

BATTAMBANG, Cambodia (UPI)—Remanants of Cambodia's resident Vietnamese community live a life of squalor and uncertainty in this, Cambodia's second city.

Some 4,000 Vietnamese, the forgotten flotsam of the Cambodian war, huddle behind barbed wire and armed guards at three sites in the western Cambodian town.

Cambodian authorities allow the Vietnamese to make a living as peddlers, carpenters or mechanics in the market place but they must return to their communal quarters before six o'clock every evening.

One camp, just off the Battambang market place, was once a Chinese school. The displaced aliens are squeezed into 27 school rooms.

"There are 10 families per room," one resident said. "About 50 to a room. Some families have as many as six children."

The residents of the schoolrooms seem luckier than the inhabitants of two other camps —one on the grounds of the former Indochina bank building where the town of Battambang meets the surrounding countryside.

KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT

The women's liberation movement hasn't hit the hippo compound at the Los Angeles Zoo yet as the mama hippo expresses her opinion (top) only to have papa hippo come in and give the last word. In this case papa will undoubtedly come out the winner as he outweighs mama by 3,000 pounds. As for their 1-year-old son, he doesn't dare say a word.

A Theatrical Avenue For Deaf

NEW YORK (UPI)—Linda Bove hears with her eyes, talks with her hands and acts with every quick, expressive movement of her body.

Miss Bove is a member of the National Theatre of the Deaf—"of" the deaf but not soley, or even mostly, "for" the deaf.

Since its inception in 1967 as a division of the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center, the Theatre of the Deaf has played to audiences of about 100,000 a year in almost 1,000 performances throughout the United States and in Europe.

On television, its audience is estimated at about 90 million.

Theater critics have been lavish in their praise of the company as professional theater in no need of condescension for the handicap of its members. Miss Bove isn't even sure deafness is such a handicap for an actor.

"People are so dependent on sound, they forget how much the eyes can do," she said in an interview, her own brown eyes brightly intent as her fingers flashed sign language to the troupe's managing director, David Hays, who interpreted for her.

Miss Bove, 26, was born in Passaic, N.J., of deaf parents, although she has a younger brother who can hear. She attended schools for the deaf in Trenton, N.J., and in the Bronx, N.Y.

Her acting career began at Gallaudet College, in Washington, D.C., one of the two colleges for the deaf in the world and the only liberal arts college for those who cannot hear.

She played Polly Peachum in "The Three Penny Opera" in a college production and has been acting ever since. That's also where Hays first spotted her and signed her for his then new deaf theater.

LINDA BOVE
Hears with eyes, talks with hands

"The idea for a theater of the deaf wasn't new," Hays said. "Others had tried to make it work but never got the funding and had to give up. I never did, but it took the O'Neill Center to provide the proper umbrella for the project."

Miss Bove explained through Hays that the actors translate written works into sign language, or else the group writes its own "sign" material.

Rehearsals are intense and fast, as are the movements of the fingers and bodies of the deaf actors. Cues are visual, not by sound.

"If you depend on eyes and visual cues, it keeps people more alert," she said.

The troupe uses sign language, not the slower pantomime, with readers interspersed with the group so that hearing audiences ignorant of sign language can follow the action.

The innovative work the company has done in preparing its own plays has led to an invitation to work in Paris with Peter Brook's International Center of Theater Research from May 8 through May 27.

The parent National Theatre group also splits into Little Theatre groups to work with children, and has been particularly successful in working with ghetto and other underprivileged children who have learning problems.

"They show children sign language," Hays said, "spell out names, do exercizes, improvisations. Children love the new tool of sign language, perhaps because it's a physical thing. They can do letters themselves, instead of just sitting there. Many have made a good breakthrough."

In this connection, the Theatre has appeared in the past on "Sesame Street," and Miss Bove is a permanent resident of that locale, although she does not appear daily. Her next appearance is scheduled for Jan. 24, while the Theatre's next appearance is March 23.

"The show is designed for ghetto and deprived children," Hays said. "These are often children with reading and language difficulties and the same things apply as our Little Theatre work. Of course, deaf children at home are happy to watch, but it isn't for them. We are hoping to develop a 'Sesame Street' type program for deaf children."

"What Linda does—well, a boy on 'Sesame Street' might say the number, 'one.' Then another might say the Spanish, 'uno.' Then our way-holding up one finger—the visual way. It really tattoos it on children's minds."

Miss Bove flashed her fingers rapidly and Hays translated:

"We should all learn about different people, how easy it is to communicate with different people if we aren't worried or frightened. That combined with language games and fun make two very important reasons for us to be on 'Sesame Street.'"

She said that children are easier to deal with than adults if you can get to them before they harden and freeze their attitudes.

"Very often these children identify with me," she said. "They have the same problems themselves—of communicating, of being different."

Miss Bove's life style is not particularly different—she is married to fellow trouper Ed Waterstreet and they live in New London, Conn., with their dog, Snoopy.

She doesn't like people thinking of the deaf as so very different, and it showed in her frowning eyes and expressive face as she answered a question about discrimination against the deaf.

"Yes, there is discrimination," she said with her fingers. "There is job discrimination and hearing people have wrong ideas, the wrong impression of deaf people. One of the things we are trying to do is show them who we are. We're trying to teach and in the future those who are now young children will know.

"Hearing people don't meet deaf people easily, and of course deaf people are invisible—that is, you could pass them on the street and you'd never know.

"Some hearing people think we have no language, that we can't even write or read. Some think deaf people give the impression of mental retardation."

Hays went on, saying that people ask the most incredible questions about the deaf—Do they use Braille? How do they make love? Can they drive cars?

"Deaf people are very tolerant and try not to get uptight because they understand how confused hearing people are. We feel the company has done a great big job by showing hearing people what the deaf can do, what they are like. But our work always is as artists. These other things follow from that."

Some Bad Apples In Barrel

By RICHARD A. NENNEMAN

Business is under attack today. It needs public understanding and support to counter irresponsible attacks on profit-making and even to balance some of the high enthusiasm of the antipollution and consumerism forces.

But business would be so much easier to defend if it didn't have its share of bad apples.

A recent copy of Industry Week magazine, a controlled-circulation weekly that goes largely to manufacturers, continues its recent theme, "Is there still time to save U.S. industry?" and includes one of a series of ads on that subject. This one, by Meldrum & Fewsmith of Cleveland, plays on the ecology issue: "There is much talk in this new revolution of preserving our natural ecology, of how some forms of life cannot survive in a suddenly hostile environment. We all should be equally concerned with another kind of environment. One which is becoming increasingly hostile to the life of business — Business, too, needs a compatible climate to survive and to flourish . . . Talk back to the critics of business."

Not much to argue with there. Then the same day one picks up the paper and reads about more indictments involving the Penn Central. Also the same day one sees an exclusive Wall Street Journal story claiming that 36 Kaiser Industries executives found a way to take advantage of a Canadian subsidiary's stock offering not open to U.S. citizens. and for every case of alleged malfeasance that comes to light, one naturally wonders how many remain hidden.

I am convinced that 99 per cent of this nation's businessmen are honest. Yet I can't forget the remark a bank officer once made to me. He had been a young banker in a boomtown out West, and recalled how he had just made a rather large loan. One of the older men in the bank asked him of the borrower, "Is he honest?" "Oh, yes sir, he's completely honest." he replied. He said the older man cautioned him, "No man is completely honest. We all have our price."

When one has known scores of executives who come at least very close to a "100 per cent" honesty line, he doesn't have to accept the implied cynicism in that retort. But corporate leaders might well contemplate the fact that the public does have that image of them, and that there are just enough bad apples in the bunch to seem to justify the broad negative image.

Moreover, very few see today's corporate executives as the heroes of America's Gilded Age. Our robber barons may have stepped on toes, underpaid their workers, and shunned legalities in building their empires. But in the process they also built the nation's industrial structure — its railroads, oil and steel industries, and so on.

Today's corporate executive may work just as hard and live just as much for his business as the tycoon of 1890. But he is seen in a less friendly light. From the start of his career, he lives what looks like a privileged life, without the degree of personal risk America's original entrepreneurs took.

Resident Vietnamese Living A Life Of Squalor In Cambodia

A shallow, rank-smelling ditch surrounds one camp where about 2,000 Vietnamese co-exist with rats that nibble the fly-covered fish that in turn will become their meal.

One of the inhabitants praised Brig. Gen. sek Sam Iet, Governor of Battambang province, for allowing the sick to receive medical treatment. The governor has also promised to send a Cambodian teacher to instruct the camp's children who have been without any education since the spring of 1970.

At that time Cambodia's resident Vietnamese estimated at about 600,000, were herded into camps throughout the country, firewood for the Khmers stoking up their furnaces in the face of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong invasion of their country.

Most left for South Vietnam in the spring and summer of 1970. Some joined the other side, according to government sources.

But others attached to Cambodia where they had spent their lives and are afraid to face life in South Vietnam, remained behind after selling their worldly goods at cut-rate prices.

Last year, most of the remaining Vietnamese from Battambang province stayed in crowded shacks in the grounds of a school in Poipet, half a mile from Cambodia's western border with Thailand.

They were then transferred into Battambang town, apparently because of Thai sensitivity to the presence of the alien group on the edge of the well-travelled highway.

A middle-aged resident of the school said he wanted to go to South Vietnam, but could not because his 75-year-old father insisted on staying. Others have changed their minds and the trickle into South Vietnam continues, with assistance from the Catholic Church, which has many members among the group.

Rag-Tag Cambodian soldiers brandish their old rifles at the camp's entrance, but say they have no trouble with their charges.

Some Unhappy Notes On Storing Wastes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Crusades to save the surface environment are driving pollution underground.

But "underground and out of sight" is hardly an acceptable concept for getting rid of our wastes, according to experts of the U. S. Geological Survey.

The practice of injecting wastes into wells drilled for that purpose has grown rapidly since 1966 when Congress passed a "clean streams" bill restricting discharge of wastes into surface waters.

But, according to Donald R. Rima, a Geological Survey hydrologist, wastes forced underground merely "are removed from the custody of man and placed in the custody of nature."

At a recent symposium in Houston, Survey scientists noted many possible unhappy consequences of driving pollution underground. They include:

Contamination of subsurface fresh water reservoirs (aquifers) which feed surface supplies.

Triggering of earthquakes. You don't just dump wastes into a well, you have to force them down under pressure. this added pressure plus lubrication of rock faces has been known to set off earth tremors.

Industrial waste injection has not so far been large, and it is not new. In the 1920s and 1930s, according to Rima, many oil companies began using injection wells to dispose of oilfield brines and to repressurize oil reservoirs.

Since the early 1950s many wells have been drilled throughout the country to get rid of a vareity of byproducts of industrial processes. In the past eight years for example, more than four billion gallons of acidic industrial waste has been injected into a subsurface limestone formation near Pensacola, Fla., according to Donald A. Goolsby, another Survey scientist.

Such wastes don't just sit still. They migrate. And in the course of years they may rise to plague man all over again.

But, so complex is the earth's geological plumbing system, fluid injection into the depths can sometimes do positive good.

In the Santa Clara Valley of California, as a consequence of overpumping of ground water between 1917 and 1968, the land subsided as much as 13 feet.

Such subsidence is common in many parts of the world as a result of pumping out oil or water. In the Santa Clara Valley example subsidence was greatly reduced by addition of water from the surface.

Underground disposal of wastes appears likely to expand in the future. The problems associated with it "will multiply significantly," Survey scientists say, unless more knowledge is obtained about nature's underground plumbing systems and how they may be affected by wastes injected from above.

Sawdust Gets Its 'Citizenship'

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sawdust, once an industrial waste product, has been made commercially useful, and forest conservation is being aided, thanks to a new method for producing doors.

Sawdust has been given economic citizenship by Scovill's Cardadco division in Dubuque, Iowa, as the wood fiber source in the company's newly developed molding system for manufacturing interior doors. Previously, the 50 tons of sawdust a day generated in extensive wood window and door production was thrown out. Now about half of this is being put to use, says Robert L. Day, operations manager.

"We formerly used only 25 per cent of the total tree in door-making operations," he said. "But now 97 per cent is being utilized. Our goal is to secure maximum use of nature's only replaceable resource wood."

Blind Youth Wins His Eagle Badge

LAKELANE, Fla. — A sophomore at Florida Southern College working toward a degree in psychology has an unusual distinction: He recently was given an Eagle Scout badge. So what's different? Paul Kurtz didn't get into scouting until he was 14, three years late.

But, as he says, he wanted to have the same knowledge other Eagle Scouts have and so he spent three years earning not the needed 21 merit badges, but 24.

And it wasn't easy because Paul has been blind since he was a baby.

"Learning to cook, I set my pants on fire," he recalls. "I didn't know when to turn the hamburgers, but a counselor told me when. But I did it. There's a book in Braille on camping, but it didn't have any pictures describing tent structure. I had a heck of a time setting up my tent."

First Addition Is Rolling Along

TORONTO (UPI)—The amplified voice from out of nowhere demands a "big smile now," but after 11 hours it's hard to respond with the proper enthusiasm.

The Kleig lights scattered over the 30-foot ceiling are hot, the red "rolling" lights on the cameras start to blur together and even the normally pleasant makeup girl is getting a little abrupt.

But the omniscient man behind the voice will order up, and get, yet another take if the big smile isn't just right — fresh, honest, genuine-looking. So when the man with the earphones out front counts backwards from five on his fingers, the big smile is there and five kids from the States are laughing, exuberant, all fun and happiness and another three-minute bit of "Rollin' on the River" is in the can.

The television show —an hour long on Canadian stations but a half hour in length in the U.S. version with Canadian guests excised —is syndicated to 150 stations in the United States for prime time showing.

The five young people who are its mainstays are "Kenny Rogers and the First Edition." Rogers is a bearded 33-year-old bass player with a gravelly voice and rose-colored glasses. He organized the group in 1967 when he, Terry Williams and Mike Settle quit the big folk sound of the New Christie Minstrels to strike out on their own.

Psychedelia with its swirling lights, pulsating rhythms and drug allusions had grabbed the fame and the top-of-the-charts from the gentler urban folk revival of the Christies and Joan Baez, so the group's first single was patterned after the Rolling Stones' "Get Off My Cloud" and the Byrds' "Eight Miles High."

They called it "Just Dropped in to See What Condition My Condition Was In," and it became the group's first hit with a more than moderate share of success.

Settle left the First Edition to launch a career in television and eventually the group gathered in Kin Vessy from Georgia to sing and play guitar, Roger's fellow Texan, Mickey Jones, to play drums, and Mary Arnold from Iowa to add femininity and provide an alternate to Kin's falsetto.

Songs since "Just Dropped In, Etc." have varied widely, including a Western-influenced "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love to Town," several civil rights songs such as "Reuben James" and from the film "Fools," the song, "Someone Who Cares."

While concert tours, particularly on college campuses, went well, after four years the group found it hard to crank out hit after hit and it seemed the First Edition might have passed the crest of the wave.

Then last year came a chance at a television special co-hosted with trumpeteer Al Hirt, to be filmed in Toronto. The special grew into eight shows, the eight into a series, "Rollin' on the River," a hip variety show with such disparate guests as Jason Robards, Johnny Cash and B.B. King.

Now they are in Toronto two months of every four. In order to get out on the road, or get home, they tape two shows a week in marathon 14 hour sessions, following four days of rehearsal.

Rogers expressed the opinion of most of the First Edition when he said in an interview "The show's good for us. It's good to get the exposure. But the days —man, the days get long and the weeks get long and sometimes I just want to go home."

The First Edition also has a new project, centered on the just released double-album called "Calico." It's sort of a Spoon River Anthology set in Calico, a ghost town in California near the Nevada state line.

The episodic story, drawn from old newspaper files, is set to music with each song depicting a bit of the actual town of Calico when it flourished. The plans are to try to make a musical from it, perhaps for Broadway, if the album goes over.

Now the First Edition's break from taping is over. The makeup girl runs a quick powder puff over their faces and the unseen director calls for another happy, relaxed look.

The man with the headphones counts backwards again from five on his fingers and at "one" the light on camera three blips on. A grip wheels the camera and cameraman in a wide arc across the room as camera two closes in tight on Rogers' face.

And for what Rogers and the rest of the studio hope will be the last time for this session, he smiles and says over the theme song, "Hi. I'm Kenny Rogers and welcome to 'Rollin' on the River. . . .' "
